Religion and Litvinoff
Very Many String Beans
He Gassed the Hens
The Cross Was Roman

By Arthur Brisbane

MIAMI, FLA., Nov. 16—Our government tells Litvinoff that before we resume friendly relations with Russia she must agree to let visiting Americans do as they please about religion.

Our attitude toward Russia is a little like that of "God Almighty to a black beetle," but Litvinoff is here on business, and will not reply as he might, "You may worship anything you choose in Russia if you will let Russians worship Lenin in the United States."

Lenin is the one Russian divinity, and Marx is his prophet, but we wouldn't allow Russians to worship him publicly here or praise his theories. A fair compromise would allow anybody to worship anything he liked, privately, as early Christians did in the catacombs.

In Marco Polo you read about the Asiatic ruler, "Khan Grande," who, according to Coleridge, "Did a stately pleasure-dome decree," and, permitting all religions in his dominions, would not allow Christian processions to carry the cross showing Christ upon it. He said he could not permit one so holy to be "thus humiliated and degraded in public."

The upper Everglades, north of here, described by inhabitants as "the source of the nation's supply of string beans," are now shipping as many as 125 carloads of beans to Northern markets daily, certainly a great many string beans.

Charles R. Barfield, who sends the information, with a cordial invitation to visit the string bean country, is editor of the Pahokee "News and Philosophy."

The ideal editor is one who gives you plenty of news, and sound, but not too much philosophy.

Poultrymen found their chickens stolen in the morning and wondered why the hens failed to "squawk" and save themselves, as the geese saved Rome.

The secret is out, and Mr. Walter Malone is in jail, to stay one year, admitting that before he entered the hen house he sprayed the interior with gas that put the hens to sleep.

Had he done that to a thousand Germans in the war, and brought them in dead or alive, he might have had a Congressional medal. Now he gets a year in jail. So much depends on why and where.

Germany would reform religion. One powerful Hitler authority in the Protestantism says crucifixes must be removed from churches, because they represent the idea of an alien people. Also the "Nazi Christian" leader says:

"The Old Testament must be excluded and palpably superstitious parts of the New Testament must be stricken out. The holy places of Palestine must not be visited, but, instead, those of Germany."

The educated are too intelligent to imagine that the crucifix has anything to do with the Jewish people; it was a Roman institution, as many Christian martyrs crucified in Rome learned to their sorrow.

Rome ruled in Jerusalem when the crucifixion took place, and Roman officials brought the use of the cross with them. Jewish law inflicted death by stoning, more democratic because it gave each member of the mob an opportunity to express actively his individual dislike of the victim.

A nice old hymn began, "Wonderful things in the Bible I see," and went on to tell of the most remarkable, "That Jesus loves me."

It would have been well had Bible students interested themselves only in its beauty and kindness. Unfortunately, many false interpretations have been made.

Here, a citizen, doubtless demented, accused of conspiring with two friends to murder Mayor Sewell and Commissioner Fossey "with a rubber hammer," said to his friend who protested:

"You get a Bible and I will show you that God's word says Sewell and Fossey should be killed."

Dreadful use has been made of Bible words falsely interpreted. Thousands of miserable old women, men, and even children guilty of no crime, have been done to death by torture, because it says in the Bible, "Thou shalt not suffer a witch to live."

And there are no witches, and never were any.

CURLEY TO DIRECT HUGE JOB FUND

Mayor Curley will be named federal director of the $3,300,000,000 public works program by President Roosevelt on or about Jan. 1, according to dispatches today from Washington. This report, based on predictions of various persons connected with the administration at Washington, again attempts to answer the question of "what federal post will Mayor Curley get?' when his term as Bostons chief executive ends.

LATIN-COMMERCE GAME POSTPONED BY COLD

The game scheduled for this afternoon at Fenway Park with Boston Latin playing High School of Commerce was postponed today because of cold weather and frozen field. The teams will meet on Saturday morning if a field can be secured.

NORRIS CALLS FOR RECOGNITION, INFLATION

Decatur, Ill., Nov. 16 (INS)—Sen. George W. Norris of Nebraska, en route to Washington, today urged that the United States give speedy recognition to Russia and adopt an immediate currency inflation plan, retiring the fourth Liberty loan bonds by an issue of greenbacks to circulate more cash.

BOSTON STORES BURGLARS GET 3 YEARS

Changing their pleas to guilty, Lawrence Reed, 30, of Newton Lower Mills and George Kelley, 33, of the South End, charged with breaking and entering Boston stores and stealing clothing, were sentenced to 3 to 5 years each in State Prison by Judge John J. Burns in Suffolk Superior Court today.

GEORGE R. NUTTER ATTACKS TAVERN PLAN

TWO FROZEN TO DEATH IN RHODE ISLAND

Providence, R. I., Nov. 16 (INS)—The frigid wave which swept New England today recorded two deaths in Rhode Island. Patrick Martin, 49, was found frozen to death in a brickyard, and John Weslowski, 76, of Lonsdale, was found dead by railroad men near a brook into which he apparently had fallen and crawled out. (More weather news on Page 15.)

BODY OF BROOKE HART, KIDNAPED, REPORTED FOUND

San Jose, Cal., Nov. 16 (INS)—The body of a man believed to be Brooke Hart, 22, kidnap victim, was reported found today in the bay near the San Mateo Bay Bridge.

Lynn Mother, Hurt, Dares Wall of Fire to Save Son

The courage of a Lynn mother who, burned and injured, carried her young son to safety from a trap of flames and smoke featured a series of dwelling fires today in Lynn, Charlestown, Brookline and Waltham.

One woman was burned, another overcome, three persons were rescued over ladders and a dozen families, including many children, were driven partially clad to the streets in the freezing weather.

Heroine of the Lynn rescue was Mrs. Jessie Brett, 32, who saved her son, Arthur, 4, by carrying him through a curtain of fire in their home on the fourth floor in Melvin Hall apartments, Spring st.

Mrs. Brett and her son were trapped while she was bathing him. She seriously cut her arms and hands by smashing the bathroom window with her fists to attract the attention of firemen.

DASHES THROUGH FLAMES

Failing this, she picked up the boy, shielded him with her own body, and dashed desperately through the flames. He was untouched, while she was burned about the head, arms and legs and barely escaped being overcome by smoke.

In the same fire, which drove out a dozen persons and caused $1000 damage, Mrs. Yvonne Richards carried her baby, Donald from another apartment.

The Charlestown fire, in a three-story wooden tenement on School st., necessitated flight, in their night clothes, of eight persons, three of whom were children.

Mrs. Lyla Burgess, 35, a widow, in whose apartment the blaze started, was overcome by smoke and suffered cuts on the hands.

OFFICER AIDS FAMILIES

From the second floor officers aided Mr. and Mrs. Paul Woods and their three small children Mr. and Mrs. Charles Farr, who live on the third floor, made their way to safety unassisted.

A Brookline mother and her three children were driven to the street in night clothing at 4 o'clock today, by fire inthe dwelling at 102 Davis ave.

Mrs. Mary J. McMurray and her children, who were asleep, were aroused by the crackling flames.

A woman and two men, trapped by flames in upstairs bedrooms, were rescued by ladder crews when a blaze drove four families from an apartment house on Lowell st., Waltham.

CARRIED DOWN LADDERS

Those carried down ladders were Mrs. Thomas MacMillen, 35; Arthur Pinter, 26, and William Pinter, 24.

The four families driven to the street in their night clothes were those of William Gately, Thomas Dunn, James Devlin, and Thomas McMillen. Several children were carried or led to safety by their parents.

The blaze started, according to police, in wooden barrels in the apartment house basement.

CITY HOSPITAL DOCTOR DIES IN CRASH

Frank L. Richardson Heads Car to Safety as He Is Stricken

Dr. Frank Linden Richardson, noted authority on anaesthesia, fatally stricken at the wheel of his auto today, swerved it off the street to prevent injuring other persons, and died as the car crashed into the bleachers on the Newton high athletic field.

He was 56, lived at 184 Highland ave., West Newton, and had offices at 520 Commonwealth ave., Boston. He had an international reputation for his knowledge and skill in the application of ether and other anaesthetics.

H was chief anaesthetist at Boston City Hospital. Dr. John J. Dowling, the superintendent, said he would be greatly missed, not only for his ability but for his personal qualities as well.

The fact that in going on to the athletic field, the auto passed through an open gate showed that Dr. Richardson drove off the street deliberately and did not lose control until the car was on the field.

Medical Examiner George L. West said he would perform an autopsy to determine the cause.

DOG MOANS

It then traversed the field from the Lowell ave. side to the Hull st. side and crashed into the wooden bleachers, wrecking five rows of seats.

Persons who heard the crash called the police and they found the doctor dead at the wheel and his Irish terrier, Gyp, moaning in the rear of the car. The dog was unhurt.

Dr. Richardson is survived by his wife, who was formerly Miss Constance Mathey and two sons, Paul and David, both students at Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

His marriage to Miss Mathey in 1913 was the culmination of an acquaintance begun when they fought side by side, as doctor and professional nurse, to save a patient from death, in which they were successful.

Dr. Richardson was a member of theh Boston Society of Anaethetists, the International Anaesthesia Research Society, Massachusetts Medical Society and Harvard Club of Boston.

He was a graduate of Concord High School, had taken special studies at M. I. T., and received his M. D. at Harvard Medical School in 1903.

WAS CITY CHIEF

He was instructor of anaesthetics at Tufts Medical School, and had made motion pictures showing the correct methods.

He was also a consultant in this field for the Children's Hospital and Beth Israel Hospital.

The athletic field where he met his death was a memorial to the late Allie Dickinson, Newton High coach, for whom it is named.

Worker Wants Rum Left in P.O. Wall

A man who gave the name of "Luke McGlook from Bunker Hill," who said he did odd jobs at the new $6,000,000 Federal building, called on Postmaster William E. Hurley today and complained that his blue overalls, in which is hidden a quart of Scotch rye whiskey, were interred in one of the walls on an upper floor. He wants the government to tear out the wall so he can get the overalls and whiskey.

WIFE ILL AS LAWYER IS STRICKEN

Doctor Fears Serious Results for Victim, Who Is Now 68

The dramatic struggle of Daniel H. Coakley in the Supreme Court to win reinstatement to the bar in the twilight of a colorful career, was suddenly halted today by the collapse of the 68-year-old member of the Governor's Council.

Coakley, it was revealed, fell unconscious at his home at 52 Parsons st., Brighton, last night.

He was in bed at home today, and the hearing in his fight for reinstatement was indefinitely postponed.

MRS. COAKLEY ILL

Mrs. Coakley is also seriously ill, as revealed yesterday in the Supreme Court by the family physician, Dr. Henry S. Rowen, appearing as a character witness for Coakley.

Dr. Rowen, called to attend Coakley, hesitated to ascribe the collapse as due to mere nervous exhaustion which has frequently struck down the aged battler in the past.

The doctor indicated that he feared it might be something much worse. He said it was a heart condition.

ISSUES OWN STATEMENT

Coakley's own estimate of his condition was more optimistic than those of his family and physician. He had his son, Gael, issue the following statement which the patient wrote out himself:

"I am not seriously ill. I am feeling very comfortable. I had a brief attack of unconsciousness last night but the difficulty is entirely gone, I believe.

"I am staying in bed because

PASTRY FLIES IN BIG CRASH

A bakery truck, a load of assorted pastry, Driver Albert Gelsthorpe, and a crossing tender's shack, all were victims together of a crash today between the truck and a Boston bound passenger train at Main st., East Weymouth.

Least of the casualties was Gelsthorpe. He escaped with cuts and bruises and was able to go to his home in Winchester.

The truck and the pastry were total losses, with fragments of each strewn generally over the East Weymouth landscape.

The crossing tender's shanty, hot stove and all, toppled into a ditch when the truck was knocked against it.

Engineer Camille Traham of New Bedford, had charge of the locomotive. He came unscathed through a pie barrage.

Truck Driver Gelthorpe said he did not see a warning signal from the crossing tender.

Mrs. T. Roosevelt, Sr., Recovers From Cold

Oyster Bay, L. I., Nov. 16 (INS)—Mrs. Theodore Roosevelt, widow of the late president, was today recovering from a heavy cold at her home, Sagamore Ill, here, it was said by her daughter, Mrs. Richard Derby.

Illness Halts Bar Battle

Daniel H. Coakley, veteran attorney, who, at 68, is battling to regain the right to practice law, collapsed at his home in Brighton last night and is reported in serious plight today. The hearing in his fight against the bar has been indefinitely postponed

Everett Bandits Give Child Free Loaf, Then Rob Store

Eight-year-old Annie Serrenda of Everett received a loaf of bread she had intended to buy for her mother free today from two bandits who afterward forced a store manager into a back room and fled with $20.

The holdup occurred at a Nichols st., Everett, chain store shortly after Manager Murray Weiss had opened for the day.

The two men entered just after the Serrenda girl. When they heard her ask for a loaf of bread they drew their guns and shouted, "wait a minute," to Weiss.

One of the bandits then stepped over to the bread counter, took a loaf and pushed it into the arms of the little girl.

Then brandishing his gun, he said: "Take [illegible] and get out of here."

The two men then forced Weiss into a rear room and demanded his envelope containing yesterday's receipts, but he had already mailed it to his employers.

The men then went to a cash register and extracted $20 and fled.

The holdup in Everett was the second within a five-mile radius within a half-hour.

A half hour earlier three men had entered the tailor shop of Max Golden, 39 Congress st., Chelsea, and after forcing him into a back room, searched him and fled with $6.60.

Golden was warned that he would be shot if he told police.

Three hours after the robbery a customer to whom he told the incident urged him to report the matter.

Everett and Chelsea police believe both holdups were committed by the same men.

Balances and Receipts

ELY IN '36 RACE, SAYS MAYNARD

Washington, Nov. 16 (AP)—Joseph A. Maynard, chairman of the Massachusetts State Democratic Committee, expressed the opinion today that Governor Ely would be a candidate for renomination "when the time comes."

Ely for some time has insisted he would retire to private life when his term expired.

"Ely will be the next governor and Senator Walsh will be the next Senator" Maynard told newspapermen. "Walsh will be elected by a majority of 150,000 and I would bet $1000 his majority will be at least 100,000."

NICHOLS HOPE DIMS ON 183 GAIN IN 91 BOXES

Creeps Too Slowly on Mansfield Total to Cause an Upset

BULLETIN

Mayor-elect Mansfield had cut down to 134 the Nichols recount gains when a total of 94 precincts had been completely tabulated this afternoon. In one division, Precinct 7 of Ward 1, alone, Mansfield picked up 47 votes.

Former Mayor Malcolm E. Nichols had scored a net gain of 183 votes over Mayor-elect Frederick W. Mansfield today after a total of 91 precincts had been tabulated in the ballot recount, but there was little elation in the Nichols camp.

One-quarter of the total of 362 precincts had been recounted and to hold an average to assure him of turning over the result of the mayoralty election, Nichols at this point should have been more than 600 votes ahead of his original score.

The most generous spots for Nichols in his surge during counting of 22 new precincts today were Precinct 6 in Ward 15, Dorchester, whehe he picked up 51 votes, 50 of them in a block that had been credited to Dist.-Atty. Foley; Precinct 3 in Ward 3, West End, where he garnered 69 more, and Precinct 8 in Ward 18, Hyde Park, where he came out with 53 added votes.

ENTHUSIASM WANES

Excitement, which ran high yesterday at the start of the recount, was missing today as the tabulating was resumed and there were none of the boasts and predictions that characterized the jumpoff.

When the recount session of yesterday ended, Mansfield had gained 15 votes on Nichols in 58 of the 362 precincts, therefore today's start was adjusted to read a Mansfield net gain of 14 votes in 61 precincts recounted.

In order to win out over Mansfield, former Mayor Nichols must pick up an average of nearly seven votes per precinct, but thus far

ROOSEVELT'S NEW PLAN GIVES THOUSANDS JOBS MONDAY

2,000,000 WILL BE EMPLOYED AT ONCE; OTHERS LATER

Five Hundred Governors, Mayors and Other Officials Carry Projects Back to Their Communities

Washington, Nov. 16 (INS)—More than 500 governors, mayors and state relief executives were departing to every state in the union today with instructions for putting 4,000,000 unemployed to useful work.

They had before them the President's forceful warning not to let politics encroach in any individual case, and his statement of the new policy which is to replace "contributions" with constructive work at decent wages.

A plan is being worked out under which certain projects may be referred from the public works administration to the new relief setup, where conditions justify the change.

Harry L. Hopkins, federal relief administrator, was privately much satisfied with the results of the conference, and with the general caliber of the men who will direct the huge undertaking.

First will come the immediate transfer of some 2,000,000 former breadwinners from a relief status in which most of them seldom saw money, and only received meager food orders from week to week, to community projects, street improvements, park and playground development and other real work, for which they will be paid real money.

These are men who have virtually been "on the dole." Next will come 2,000,000 additional new workers, drawn from the ranks of those whom the President classified as ones "who should have been receiving relief" but who were too proud to seek it, or for other reasons had not been helped.

Hope was expressed that machinery could be set in motion by next week.

Governor Ely and State Treasurer Hurley, as well as Mayors Curley of Boston, Murphy of Somerville, and Mahoney of Worcester, were prominent in conferences at which the administration project for unemployment relief was explained yesterday.

Money allocations for approved projects, such as street or highway construction, sanitation or health projects, are to be disbursed by federal officers in each state without Washington approval of each project necessary.

Addressing 500 governors, mayors, public officials and relief workers, President Roosevelt said:

"I want to tell you, very, very simply, that your national government is not trying to gain political advantage one way or the other out, of the needs of human beings for relief. We expect the same spirit on the part of every governor of every one of the 48 states, and on the part of every mayor and every county commissioner and of every relief agent.

"I would like to have the general rule adopted—that no person connected with the administration of this $400,000,000 will in any single case in any political subdivision of the United States ask whether a person needing relief or work is a Republican, Democrat, Socialist or anything else."

The financial features of the project are:

Four hundred million dollars is now available to Harry L. Hopkins as civil works administrator for expenditure in the next four months on many kinds of projects approved by local civil works agencies which he intends to hold responsible.

The federal government will retain money calculated to provide 1,000,000 jobs on federal projects. The balance will be allotted to states, on the basis of a quota of the number to be put to work in each state. These quotas, already tentatively fixed, were computed 75 per cent on population and 25 per cent on the number of families on relief rolls.

Swindle Net Snares 'Bid Ed'

"BIG ED" FUREY

Edward J. "Big Ed" Furey is in police toils again after renouncing a "life of crime" to avoid a Sing Sing term. As a pal of "Nicky" Arnstein he was involved in the $5,000,000 bond theft, but has fallen on lean days. He turned up as a North Shore society liquor hijacker and is now suspected of being the "con" gang leader which fleeced an Ashburnham widow of $1250. (Boston American photo.)

$50,000 ASKED FOR DEAFNESS

Partial deafness, suffered as a result of being struck by an auto, was claimed by Miss Sara McCue, of Bennington, Vt., in her $50,000 damage suit against William R. Driver, Jr., of Milton, which opened today before Judge Elisha H. Brewster and a federal court jury.

Miss McCue charges Driver owned an automobile, operated by Elijah Lee of the Harvard Business School, which knocked her down a year ago as she was crossing Market st., opposite Starhawk st., Brighton.

Medical testimony was offered to substantiate the woman's claims of serious injuries to her eyes, her head, and her ears.

Dr. William T. Haley, Beacon st., attached to the St. Elizabeth's Hospital, testified Miss McCue was suffering from nerve deafness when she was received.

VETS ORGANIZE FOR PROTEST

Senators and Congressmen from all parts of the state have been invited to attend a meeting in the Parker House late this afternoon at which protests are to be voiced against the treatment of war veterans by the five review boards of the Boston Veterans Bureau.

The meeting has been called by Walter C. Howard, commander of the Department of Massachusetts, Veterans of Foreign Wars, who said that the boards are disregarding the regulations of President Roosevelt in their consideration of the cases of disabled veterans.

Boston now has the lowest percentage of awards in the country, he declared in calling the meeting to which officers of other veterans' organizations have been invited.

SWEEP TICKETS DEMANDED BY BOGUS AGENT

Copyright, 1933, by the Boston Evening American

Scores of New England holders of winning tickets in the recent Irish sweepstakes were the intended victims of a fraudulent Secret Service agent, who threatened federal prosecution if the tickets were not turned over to him, the Boston Evening American learned today.

The scheme to mulct winners of their cash prizes had its origin in Trenton, N. J., and the fake agent signed his letters, demanding the tickets, "Captain Charles La Tow, No. 286 S. S."

Ticket holders were instructed to deliver "to our nearest American Express office, all winings of evidence ,tickets included, marked care of Captain La Tow."

WASHINGTON TO ACT

"If you comply with these orders at once," the letter reads, "your transgression and your case will be deferred or checked."

Queries at the Boston American Express office, resulted in an investigation by District Manager T. L. Happ, who forwarded a report to the New York office.

A copy of his report has been placed in the hands of federal authorities in Washington for investigation, Happ said today.

The fact, the letters were delivered only in the past few days and that prompt queries were made at the express office is believed to have upset the plan of the bogus agent, at least so far as Greater Boston is concerned.

Officials of the company, however, feel that the racket may have met with greater success elsewhere. Agents all over the country are being checked to learn if any tickets were delivered to their offices and turned over to "Captain La Tow."

AVOIDED MAIL CHARGE

The bogus Secret Service captain took extra precautions in carrying out the scheme. He did not use the U. S. mails to deliver his letters, but sent them through th Railway Express office in Trenton, thus evading a charge of using the mails to defraud.

A huge list of winners all over the country were apparently in his possession. The letter opens with a reminder that the Federal government is "waging relentless war on racketeering, especially on all foreign sweepstakes."

"Your name has been found on the winning list or sweepstake being run in another country," he missive reads, "we do not need to mention which!

"As with all such cases, everyone is equally guilty. Also, we give all such cases as yours another chance, providing they obey our orders at once."

Nazi Demands Parity at World Parley, Pledges Faith

By KARL H. VON WIEGAND

(Copyright, 1933, by Universal Service, Inc.)

Berlin, Nov. 16—Gen. Hermann Wilhelm Goering, German minister of air and Prussian premier, in a two-hour conversation following a three-hour cabinet session, last night told me:

Karl H. Von Wiegand

Gen. Goering

"Germany is ready for an international convention in which she sees granted fullest equality with other nations in principle, and then Germany, in the same convention, will willingly and solemnly pledge and commit herself that she will exercise the right of equality in arms in a most moderate and limited extent.

"Is not that a fair proposition? Can there be any moral or other objection?"

That was the key note of the conversation. I interjected:

"The French say you are already building military planes in violation of the Treaty of Versailles."

Goering answered:

"By the sacred memory of my wife, I swear to you it is untrue."

For the German, there is no code more holy or sacred. I remarked:

"The British and French charge that Germany has 1200 planes."

Goering exclaimed:

"Great God, I wish I had half that number. When I took over the air ministry, I found a fleet of old transport planes, many of them of 1925 and 1926 vintage. I am trying to replace them with later, faster, and more up-to-date types.

SEEKS U. S. PLANES

"You yourself have remarked that Germany is two or three years behind America in air transport. As a measure of even greater safety in air transport, I am planning to eliminate single-motor ships and replace them with multi-motors. I am installing beacon lighted airways for night travel.

"All this activity in our commercial air transport is being purposely misconstrued and distorted abroad as military air activity. The French general staff is not so badly informed as all that."

Goering is planning to order one or two American twin-engined Boeing 447 model transport planes, "just to try them over here." He scorned constant assertions that commercial planes can be quickly transformed into bombers.

Goering revealed to me his air force demands and some of the German government's views of the arms situation. He said:

"Germany is willing to participate in a conference, but makes one, only one, precondition in—that Germany's right to equality be recognized—that, in principle, she enter the conference on an equal footing with others.

"No equality; no conference for us," he sharply interjected, continuing:

"I don't presume to speak for the foreign office, but I can say that."

WORLD AFFAIRS WORRY

The air minister did not hide deep concern over the foreign situatiton. He said:

"Abroad they may well think that the unprecedented vote of confidence at the polls Sunday, as great as any government ever received, has given us megalomania. Well, it hasn't! We are quite modest and we are going to remain modest. We are harboring no illusion. We are not going to set out to conquer Europe, much less the world. Only the addlebrained can believe such stuff.

"We want Germany to have the same right within her own borders as other nations enjoy without question."

Goering confirmed the German demand for defensive arms, already made before the American and British ambassadors and Premier Mussolini. The air minister said:

"If the others don't want to carry out their solemn pledge to disarm, and we are convinced they don't, well and good. Let them keep what they have and permit us a small percentage of what they have to defend ourselves if attacked."

He said no precise figures have been submitted to Washington, London and Rome. Asked how the figures would be arrived at he said:

"We want an army of 300,000 men approximately armed. We want a limited number of moderately sized planes up to six tons. But I am speaking only for the air ministry.

"I will take and add together all the fight, pursuit, observation, and reconnaisance planes of the French, Belgian, Polish and Czechoslovakian military air fleets, exclusive of all their hundreds of bombers, and of this total surrounding Germany, I will ask but a modest, very modest, percentage of the same types.

"That is not warlike."

GUNS UNLIMITED

Goering would not define what he considers "a modest percentage." I had the impression he has in mind a figure not exceeding 30 per cent of the total planes mentioned in the combined territorial fleets of surronding countries.

The air minister said he is not calculating the British air fleet in unless Britain makes an alliance or entente with France. He added:

"My personal opinion is that we will be content with one-quarter or even less of the number of the planes mentioned in the prospective non-bomber air fleets."

"And how many anti-aircraft guns?"

"With those we want a free hand. They are absolutely of a wholly defensive character."

'BIG ED' FUREY HELD IN WIDOW SWINDLE

Arnstein's Pal in Line-up for Ashburnham Fleecing

"Big Ed" Furey, with "Nicky" Arnstein a conspicuous figiure in the $5,000,000 New York bond thefts, and former North Shore society liquor hi-jacker, is in the toils again.

Possessed of a long record, and wanted by Philadelphia police for impersonating a federal officer, Furey is held at headquarters in connection with the extortion of $1250 from an Ashburnham widow.

DUPES AT LINEUP

He was seized at Columbus ave. and West Newton st., by detectives, headed by Lieut. George V. Augusta, and Police Chief Thomas J. Godley of Fitchburg. They were accompanied by Trooper George S. Pollard of the State police.

Furey was taken into custody in connection with the larceny of $1250 from Mrs. Marjorie Mitchell, 42, of Ashburnham, a widow. Six persons are now under arrest on charges of conspiracy to steal from Mrs. Mitchell. She put up the money for bail when men posing as State troopers pretended to arrest Frank Sari, of Tarrytown, N. Y., for operating an improperly registered car. Scarri was visiting at her home.

Witnesses from Fitchburg were to be present at the lineup at police headquarters today, to attempt to identify Furey as one of the men. Police said they would also attempt to have present an instructor at a local private school who was victimized of $5000 in an extortion racket. At least one other victim of extortion, a woman, will attend the lineup, police said.

FAILS TO GO STRAIGHT

Furey, who is now 53, and a former resident of Lynn, has a long and spectacular career. As an associate of the late "Nicky" Arnstein in the New York bond robberies in 1917, he was the object of a long police search. On his capture he pleaded guilty to extortion from the two messengers who stole many of the bonds, and was sentenced to Sing Sing. Sentence was stayed and Furey announced he was going straight.

Crack Express Train Jumps Rails in Ohio

Columbus, O., Nov. 16—Five sleeping cars and two coaches of the Buffalo-Cincinnati express of the Big Four railroad, train No. 5, were derailed early today at a rail crossover at Worthington, 12 miles north of here. Railroad officials announced none of the passengers was killed, and none injured seriously.

Excited passengers, some in night clothing, emerged from the derailed cars into a biting cold wind. The cause of the derailment

2 RESCUED OFF LYNN, NEARLY FROZEN

Ship Picks Up Men Who Say Sea Guard Ignored Flares

Their hands and feet frozen after 24 hours of drifting in an open disabled powerboat, Albert Bailey of Saugus and Delbert A. Jones of Melrose were rescued off Lynn last night by the steamer Sacramento and landed in Beverly early today.

They left Boston for Saugus Tuesday afternoon, and yesterday the coast guard was asked to search for them. Bailey's home is at 59 Ballard st., Saugus; Jones' at 150 Green st., Melrose Highlands.

Their 27-foot craft became disabled off Egg Rock, Nahant, Tuesday evening and they were swept out to sea, the rescued men reported.

BURNS UNDERSHIRT

Bailey burned canvas soaked in gasoline and then fired his undershirt in an effort to attract the attention of the Nahant coast station, the men said.

With darkness, wind and sea increased and 40-foot waves nearly swamped their boat. They bailed all night to keep afloat. Early yesterday a steamer passed close to them but did not stop.

When the Sacramento sighted them last night, their arms and legs were beginning to freeze and they could not hold ropes thrown to them from the steamer. Finally the rescuers tied nooses in the rope ends and the men were able to place these about their bodies. They were hauled aboard the ship and given medical aid and their powerboat was taken in tow to Beverly, where the Sacramento was bound from California ports.

DENY SIGNALS IGNORED

Bailey and Jones said they had checked with the Nahant coast guard station and learned that their signals were seen Tuesday night and that nothing was done about them.

At the Nahant station, however, it was explained to the Boston Evening American that no signals had been seen.

STATUTE CALLS FOR BAN ON CARRYING

Heavy Penalties Set for Carting About Unsealed Bottles

Second in a controversial way only to the "tavern" provision, a bitter battle was forecast today over that part of the proposed hard liquor legislation which would ban carrying of liquor in flasks on the person or in bottles not originally sealed.

As the proposed statute is worded now, a person found flask-toting --a practice that became almost universal in some sets during prohibition, or who even wished to transport a partly-filled bottle from one place to another to relieve illness—would be subject to heavy penalties if caught.

The legal affairs committee, which was expected to report the liquor control bill into the House today, with the tavern feature incorporated, has tentatively voted to change the method of collecting beer and liquor taxes, it is also understood.

NEW TAX PLAN

It is now planned, instead of collecting taxes every 10 days, as has been done on 3.2 beer, the State revenue stamps will be sold in serial.

This is expected to curb the activities of bootleggers and other tax evaders, inasmuch as heavy penalties will be set for possession of unstamped beer and hard liquor.

The general liquor control bill is expected to precipitate a bitter battle in both branches of the Legislature particularly a battle over the tavern provision.

10 FAVOR TAVERN PLAN

It was reported that 10 of the 15 members of the Legal Affairs Committee, which will offer the bill, have been recorded in favor of the inclusion of the tavern provision.

The measure is expected to go to the House at once, where its various sections will be taken up. One of these is said to provide 1000 licenses of all kinds in Boston, 250 of them for package stores, instead of the total of 750 in the original draft.

Under the revised measure, hotels, restaurants, clubs, steamboat lines and railroad dining cars will also be permitted to serve intoxicants by the glass, and sales by the bottle will be allowed at drug stores as well as package stores.

Local option will allow cities and towns to decide for themselves whether liquor is to be sold within their confines.

GIRL VOTER ILL, TRIAL DELAYED

Miss Natalie Cross, attractive Everett dancing school teacher, was too ill to face charges of illegal voting in Everett, and her trial in Malden court, scheduled for today, was continued three weeks.

Miss Cross, with Earl Brander of Saugus, was arrested three days after the election of Mayor James A. Roche in Everett following an investigation by State Detective Edward P. O'Neil.

When Miss Cross' case was called today Atty. John F. Gilmore told the judge his client was suffering from a nervous breakdown and would not be able to appear in court for at least two weeks.

JUDITH ALLEN FLEES TO REST

Hollywood, Nov. 16 (INS)—After the most hectic six months of her life, screen actress Judith Allen, formerly Marie Elliott Sonnenberg, of Belmont, Mass., slipped away from Hollywood for a rest.

Paramount studio announced today that she had gone "somewhere in Mexico," and that before she departed she said:

"I'm going where people talk a different language."

Since the day as an unknown girl Miss Allen was selected by Cecil B. DeMille for the lead in a feature picture she had had no rest, but played four more leads in pictures without a day off.

Needy Mother Gets Stove, Boston's Response Quick

The colder the weather, the warmer Boston's heart, and the warmth of Boston's heart has supplied the heat for a Charlestown tenement where, a few days ago, there wasn't even a stove.

The Boston Evening American's appeal for a stove for a Charlestown mother of seven children—one a baby about to go home after four months in the hospital—met with an overwhelmingly generous response from men and women readers who never forget, being warm, the suffering of being cold.

There were many stoves offered. Only one was needed and that is already installed. Those who didn't have stoves to offer donated clothing, money, and other necessities.

It's rather fine, too, that nobody wants any credit for his or her generosity.

"Enclosed is a $1 money order for the mother who has the sick baby and no stove to keep it warm . . . Please leave my name out . . ."

"We will give a stove if she has not already got one. If she has, we will send along some clothing for her and the children . . . Don't use our names . . ."

They are all like that. If you've lost faith in human nature and human kindness, you have only yourself to blame, you see.

For the mother and the children, especially the little one come home in a warm house now—thank you!

MARY M'CORMIC IN FISTICUFFS SLAPS GIRL

Grace Williams Rouses the Singer in Sale of Prince's Secrets

Los Angeles, Nov. 16 (AP)—Mary McCormic, the opera singer, squared off in a face-slapping episode with a young woman identified as Grace Williams, a friend of the Princes Mdivani, and came out the winner last night.

Reporters and editors, of whom there were many to witness the brief engagement in the editorial offices of a Los Angeles newspaper, separated the pair. The witnesses agreed that Miss McCormic was the victor.

The face-slapping episode came as a sequel to Miss McCormic's divorce from Prince Serge Mdivani Tuesday.

Miss Williams attempted to dispose of the "secrets" of the agreement to a newspaper. Miss McCormic, her Irish eyes blazing, entered the newspaper office a few moments after Miss Williams.

SLAPS GIRL'S FACE

"You will, will you?" demanded Miss McCormic, swinging into action.

A short time later, Michael Luddy, an attorney for the singer, learning of the circumstances and the reported tale of the settlement, came forth with a statement of the details of the property agreement. He said:

"The agrement provided that in consideration of Miss McCormic dismissing her action against Mdivani with respect to the ownership of one-half of the stock of the Pacific Shore Oil Co., Mdivani would pay to Miss McCormic the sum of $15,000, evidenced by two notes, one in the sum of $5000, payable in six months, and secured by the oil company's stock, and the other in the sum of $10,000.

LENDS HER MONEY

"Mdivani agreed that any property of any nature or description standing in the name of Miss McCormic or in their joint name should be the absolute property of Miss McCormic.

"No contest was made over the validity of a $5000 note of the Pacific Shore Oil Co., representing money which Miss McCormic loaned the company, $3500 of which was obtained by the pawning of Miss McCormic's jewelry. Miss McCormic has the pawn tickets to show for this pawning of her personal effects. Both parties, under terms of the agreement, released all claims against each other."

Miss Williams, those whom she approached said, represented herself as a "close friend of the Mdivani family" and said she was writing a biography of the famous princes, of whom there are three, Serge, David and Alexis. The latter is the husband of the former Barbara Hutton, five and ten cent store heiress. David formerly was married to Mae Murray, screen actress.

BRITAIN MOVES FOR NEW PARLEY

London, Nov. 16 (AP) — Great Britain moved today to get Germany back into the disarmament conference by instructing Sir John Simon, foreign secretary, to proceed to Geneva tomorrow.

He is to hold conversations there with Hugh R. Wilson, minister to Geneva and acting head of the American delegation to the disarmament conference, aimed toward giving the parley a fresh start on the basis of an actual draft of a disarmament convention.

The British action in sending out the foreign secretary at this time was in response to the appeal of Arthur Henderson of Great Britian, president of the conference who threatened on Monday to resign if international disarmament activity was not forthcoming.

GOLD PRICE SET AT WORLD LOW

Washington, Nov. 16 (AP)—For the third successive day, the Administration today set a price of $33.56 an ounce for Reconstruction Corporation purchases of newly mined gold.

The figure was far below the dollar value of gold at London, which ranged upward from $35.14, as the dollar—which opened at $5.47—was further depreciated.

Declines which took the dollar to $5.50 carried the foreign gold price still higher until the dollar rallied to $5.41½ only to elapse again to $5.44½.

Wins Love Set

VIRGINIA RICE ENGAGED

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Eggleston Rice are announcing the engagement of their daughter, Miss Virginia Rice, to Melvin M. Johnson, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Melvin M. Johnson of Brookline.

Miss Rice, ranked as one of the 10 best tennis players of the country, was graduated from the Beaver County day school and has studied in Europe. She was presented in 1930 at a dance at the Somerset and then spent two years at the Erskine School. She has played in tournaments in this country and in Europe and last summer she competed at Wimbledon.

Mr. Johnson was graduated from Noble and Greenough and Harvard in 1931, where his clubs are: Hasty Pudding, Varsity Club, Institute of 1770, and Pi Eta. He is now attending Harvard Law School.

Mr. and Mrs. Rice are entertaining their daughter and her fiance at tea on Friday afternoon, Nov. 24th.

STANLAWS CAN TAKE 2 STARS, MAKE ONE

Famous Artist Says In All Hollywood No Girl Is Perfect

New York, Nov. 16 (AP)—Despite all the ballyhoo Penrhyn Stanlaws, eminent portrait painter is convinced that there is not one perfect screen beauty among Hollywood's stars.

There would be if one of them had Lupe Velez' profile, Joan Bennett's facade and a boyish figure. Stanlaws would add a touch of lip stick, rouge and mascara.

In 1922 Stanlaws lost his job as a Hollywood director because he spoke out on Hollywood's pulchritude.

He spoke out again today with no job to lose:

MAE WEST: "Her head, eyes and mouth were constructed for a simple nose, but nature presented her with a complicated one—interestingly modeled, but bringing the eyes too close together."

GRETA AND JEAN

KATHERINE HEPBURN: "Her chin and the lower part of her face project too far. Anthropologists have a name for such a facial type; they call it prognathism. Artists call it 'horsey.'"

CONSTANCE BENNETT: "A real symphony in jazz—her nose too small for her face."

GRETA GARBO: "She has a sleepy, sophisticated look, attained by deep eye sockets and a peculiar slant of the upper lip. These are not aids to beauty, but schoolgirls find the effect more alluring than beauty."

JEAN HARLOW: "She has a graceful and expressive figure—between that of the '90's and the boyish form. Her face is the same type as Katherine Hepburn's, but more so, caused by her nose projecting at too sharp an angle."

LUPE'S FORM O. K.'D

LUPE VELEZ'S figure is the "true maidenly" one, he said, and her face is mobile so she "can look sophisticated or innocent at will."

ANN HARDING: "Fine symmetrical features—but so nearly approaching the classic type that repose of features is essential to beauty."

KAY FRANCIS: "Nicely-balanced features—head in fine proportion to the body—oversized triceps of the arms."

MARY PICKFORD: "There is no one in the films who has her sculptural modelling and harmony of features. Mary hasn't 'it,' however."

MARLENE DIETRICH: "Take Mary Pickford's head, replace it with one slightly out of drawing, give her heavy eyelids and sunken eyes and you have Dietrich—a sophisticated Mary."

JOAN CRAWFORD AND JOAN BLONDELL, Stanlaws said, have Mae West's unusually prominent features, but their "skull construction isn't large enough to carry them."

ALLEN CURTIS DYING IN CRASH

Felled by a bus at Beacon and Charles st., Allen Curtis, 71, Boston social registerite, clubman and broker, was near death in Phillips House, Massachusetts General Hospital early today.

Curtis, whose Boston residence is at 68 Beacon st., was crossing Charles st. when he was struck by the bus operated by Earle Sukeforth of Commercial st., Weymouth Heights.

Rushed to the hospital Curtis was found to be suffering from concussion of the brain, fractured right arm, contusions and lacerations of the left eye and a possible fractured skull. His name was placed on the danger list.

In 1917 Curtis was a member of the New York and Boston Stock Exchange firm of Curtis & Sanger. In December of that year he figured in an investigation by Congress of an alleged leak of a peace note by President Wilson to nations involved in the World War.

He is treasurer and trustee of the Boston Library Society, director of the New York Ship Building Co., vice-president and trustee of the Provident Institution for Savings and treasurer and trustee of the American School for Classical Studies in Athens.

Boston Pilot Survives Stratosphere Tests

Mark Ridge, the young Dorchester "air-devil," planning a balloon ascension into the stratosphere protected only by a diving suit, has survived vacuum tank tests, inhaling pure oxygen in an atmosphere similar to that encountered at an altitude of 50,000 feet, according to cable messages from London today.

This was equivalent to the approximate heighth reached by Prof. Auguste Piccard in his first stratosphere ascension.

"Success. 50,000 feet, going 60,000 Monday. Everything fine."

To Harry K. Reynolds, International News Service correspondent at London, Ridge announced:

"History [illegible] been made. I plan to return to the United States shortly. I will proceed rapidly with arrangements for my flight into the stratosphere."

Ridge's greatest Boston fame was attained as the only man ever arrested for a parachute leap over the Back Bay. The charge was never prosecuted.

He recently interested American scientists in his daring proposal to go into the stratosphere in an open balloon. The Navy Department refused him permission to make decompression chamber tests of his ability to survive rarified atmosphere on the grounds it was too dangerous.

Prof. J. S. Haldane, British physicist, became interested and the tests are being conducted in the chambers of a London firm making war equipment. Ridge is Haldane's house guest in London.

Stockton Called in Senate Bank Probe

President Philip Stockton, of the First National Bank of Boston, was served with a summons today to appear on Nov. 24 before the Senate banking committee, to which Ferdinand Pecora is presenting evidence of financial transactions by leading New York banks, securities companies and executives.

He is the third Boston bank president to be summoned, the others being Robert D. Brewer of the Merchants National Bank and Walter S. Bucklin of the National Shawmut Bank.

5 DOCTORS FACE JAIL IN FRAUD

The early arrest of five doctors and at least 20 other persons was indicated today in the investigation of the East Boston auto insurance fraud ring.

Two suspects, Luigi Salomone, 50, of Havre st., East Boston, and Santo Di Silvestro, 20, of Bremen st., East Boston, were ordered held until next Tuesday on charges of conspiring to steal by means of fake accident claims.

Licenses held by two men and a woman were also suspended yesterday by Morgan Ryan, registrar of motor vehicles, who is co-operating with the Massachusetts Claims Investigating Commission in running down the faked accidents.

Activities of the ring first came to light when authorities became suspicious of the large number of accidents in a small area of East Boston.

Moonshine Blast Kills 2

ROYCE FORTUNE TO FAMILY

The widow and children of Frederick Page Royce, former vice-president and treasurer of Stone & Webster Co. of Boston, are the chief beneficiaries of his estate, valued at several hundred thousand dollars, under the terms of his will filed for probate today at Dedham court.

Faithful servants and several philanthropic institutions were similarly remembered by Royce, who for years was a leading figure in the public utility field and successfully managed numerous pow- and light companies.

To his sons-in-law and daughter-in-law, he left $1000 each.

Each of Royce's servants received $100 for each year of service.

St. Paul's Episcopal Church, Dedham, received $1000 for the benefit of the poor; and the Free Hospital for Women in Brookline was left a similar amount.

The remainder of his valuable estate was left to his widow, Mrs. Eva Royce, the income of which she may use during her lifetime.

Mrs. Royce, her son, and John C. Rice were named executors of the will drawn and signed June 24, 1932.

Speakeasies Must Pay Sales Tax

Mark Graves, president of the tax commission, announced the state would force speakeasy proprietors to pay the 1 per cent retail sales taxx.

"Lists of the speakeasies have been compiled and will be turned over to sales tax examiners and a thorough canvass promptly inaugurated," said Graves. "Books and records are to be inspected and payment of a correct tax amount will be demanded."

'Lady Friend' Gives Chauffeur $16,000

Providence, Nov. 16—A story of how the late Mrs. Honora J. Cooper, wealthy widow, presented Pierre G. Morin, 50-year-old auto service employee, with $16,000 in securities, was told in Superior Court.

Morin caused a ripple of laughter in court when he denied he is a chauffeur, and declared Mrs. Cooper "was my lady friend." He testified they had talked of matrimony but because he was a poor man the ceremony was deferred.

Mrs. Cooper underwent an operation shortly after the securities were transferred, and died Oct. 8. Her heirs are demanding that Morin return the securities to the estate, on the ground that she did not give them to him and that he was merely her chauffeur.

CONTEMPT CRY IN BANK PROBE

Washington, Nov. 16 (INS)—Harley L. Clarke, Chicago utility magnate, was threatened with contempt proceedings today.

Clarke told the Senate banking inquiry committee last week he had no stock interest in the Nicholas Power Co. when it was acquired in 1925 by the International Projector Corp. Today he testified he owned all the stock at that time.

"The witness must remember he is under oath," Sen. Couzens (R.), of Michigan, said, "and can be charged with contempt."

"Or with perjury," added Ferdinand Pecora, Senate counsel.

Clarke protested he had made an "honest error," having misunderstood the question last week.

Pecora was inquiring into the General Theatres Equipment Corp., used by Clarke and Albert H. Wiggin, former head of the Chase National Bank, in their fight against William Fox.

It brought a $20,000,000 loss to the Chase bank, heavier losses to the Chase Securities Corp., and bankruptcy to Pynchon & Co., Wall st. bankers.

Investigators wonder whether the things they had found in a study of a pool in Sinclair Consolidated Oil Corporation stock might bring a proxy war between Harry F. Sinclair and John D. Rockefeller, Jr.

The stock market committee had developed that a payment of $300,000 from this pool's profits was made to William S. Fitzpatrick, former president of the Prairie Oil Company which was later absorbed by the Sinclair.

he is minus. In the original balloting, Mansfield led Nichols by 2397 votes.

Changes in Wards 13 and 16, where the city council contests were closest, were negligible.

The precincts counted were in Wards 1, 2, 3, 4, 13, 14, 15, 16, 17, 18 and 20. In Ward 13, where President Joseph McGrath of the City Council was declared re-elected by 154 votes over ex-Representative Peter Fitzgerald, a net gain for McGrath of two votes was recorded. In Ward 16, where Councilor Albert L. Fish was declared re-elected by 111 votes over John J. McGrath, a net gain of only one vote was disclosed for McGrath.

In the mayoralty recount, Nichols at first showed a gain, which mounted to a net of 70 in the first 24 precincts. Then a decline set in until at the end of 39 precincts Mansfield was in the lead with 20 votes.

That was Mansfield's highest for the day, dropping at the end of the session to only 15 votes.

Nichols, who was present during the counting, refused to admit defeat, and repeated that he will be declared the victor ultimately.

DAN COAKLEY COLLAPSES

the doctor and my family insist on it. I hope to be out within 48 hours and I wish the newspapermen would print this statement so my friends everywhere will know the truth."

Gael Coakley told newspapermen that his father was alone in his room when members of the family heard him fall with a thud, and rushing to him found him senseless.

His collapse came as the reinstatement hearing approached a climax with Coakley due to take the stand himself to undergo grilling by Robert G. Dodge of the Boston Bar Association, which opposes restoring him to the practice of law.

The courtroom was again filled and Judge Fred T. Field had assumed his place on the bench when announcement of Coakley's illness was made by his counsel, Michael H. Sullivan of Lawrence.

ILL YESTERDAY

The announcement took the audience completely by surprise and caused a hum of whispering which disturbed the customary decorum of the high court.

"Because of his illness we will be unable to go on today," said Sullivan.

"Have the other counsel been informed?" asked Judge Field.

"Yes, it has been explained to them," said Sullivan.

"Well, when you feel Mr. Coakley can come in again, we will resume," said Judge Field.

Reporters rushed over to question Gael Coakley, who said:

"My father complained of illness late yesterday afternoon after the day's session where all those character witnesses thrilled us with their support of him.

WIFE IS ALSO ILL

"He was very tired and took a short rest at the Parker House before going home.

"About 7:45 we heard a dull thud and found him unconscious on the floor. We called Dr. Rowen.

"Dad had several attacks before and we figured this was the same but Dr. Rowen would not state definitely, saying, 'I hope it is just nervous exhaustion but at this time I do not care to make any definite statement.'"

Dr. Rowen in the Supreme Court yesterday spoke in high praise of the Coakley family life and said that Mrs. Coakley's illness was due in great measure to her worry over her husband's health as he made the fight for which he had been preparing 11 years.

Coakley, it was learned, gained consciousness before the physician arrived last night and insisted he was all right but the doctor thought otherwise.

RESTRAINED TO HOME

This morning he told his family he was determined to dress and go to court to finish the battle he had started, but Dr. Rowen, arriving at the house, convinced him it would be dangerous and that he must remain in bed.

Friends revealed that in July, while with his family at his Buzzards Bay summer home, he came to Boston on business and went in the afternoon to his Brighton home. There he slipped going upstairs and struck the rail heavily, fracturing a rib.

His side was taped until October and an infection developed which left his side very weak.

He stooped to pick up a paper from the floor yesterday in court and those who knew of his injury watched him and saw him grimace. Coakley has also had stomach trouble for a long time. His friends were considerably alarmed over his condition today.

THREE MYSTERY DEATHS AROUSE PRINCETON

Princeton, N. J., Nov. 16 (INS)—A death mystery—the third in the shadow of Princeton University in two months—evoked widespread speculation here today because of new developments.

The latest victim was Jay F. Towner, 3d, 23, of Perryman, Md., a former student of Johns Hopkins University. With a party of friends he attended the Dartmouth-Princeton football game last Saturday. He became separated from his friends.

His body was found several hours after the bame on the lawn Guyot Hall, half a mile from Palmer Stadium. He had died of internal injuries, an autopsy revealed. Both wrists were broken and his face lacerated.

ONE THEORY SPIKED

The theory that Towner was crushed to death by the crowd leaving the game was definitely spiked today by two Princeton undergraduates, whose names were not revealed by the authorities. The two students talked with Towner a half-hour after the game.

Princeton students are now demanding action from the authorities in the Towner case and also in the strange deaths of a university janitor and a five-year-old boy.

The janitor, John M. Tigne, 69, was found lying on the campus near the dormitory where he worked. The coroner held he had fallen from a roof in an effort to commit suicide.

SON REPUTES REPORT

However, the janitor's son, Arthur M. Tighe, said such a conclusion is preposterous. He said his father could not have leaped from the dormitory window without striking a tailor shop sign. His father's spectacles and false teeth were not damaged.

Equally mystifying was the circumstances surrounding the death of the 6-year-old boy whose body was found on the Princeton dump a fortnight ago.

Prosecutor Erwin E. Marshall of Mercer county admitted there might be a possibility that a "killer" is loose in Princeton but he had no information to support such a theory.

School Heads Hear Warning of Dictation

Warning of a marked increase of political dictation in the selection of school teachers was voiced by E. W. Butterfield, commissioner of education for Connecticut, at the annual convention of New England Teacher-Preparation Association held at the State House today. Aoout 125 school superintendents were present, greeted by the education commissioners of the six New England states. The convention will end tomorrow night.

opera singer, getting rid of her husband, "Prince Mdivani," of Georgia, Russia, says her marriage was a "noble experiment," but failed. Others would find a better adjective to describe the experiment.

The same prince had married a Polish moving picture star, Pola Negri, who ought to understand foreigners. Her "experiment" didn't work either.

There are three Mdivani princes, all of Georgia, Russia, and all, in the opinion of ladies, "easy to look at."

One recently married the daughter of the five and ten-cent king, who, this week, celebrated her 21st birthday, gained possession of a fortune called "close to one hundred million dollars."

You need not be a Cogliostro, or any kind of astrologer, to know that there was a lucky star over Georgia, Russia, when the little Mdivanis made their appearance.

NRA does increase prices. In Miami, lumber for building, framing, joists, etc., has gone up 100 per cent, ordinary tongue and grooved sheathing about 90 per cent. That makes it not quite so easy to sell or persuade people to build, unfortunately, and lumber men will observe the fact that cement blocks have moved up only 12 per cent, cement not 20 per cent, rock and sand for concrete about 50 per cent.

If concrete blocks and cement remain cheap while lumber goes up, that will hurt lumber men.

Knock Out that COLD!

Give It No Chance To Get Going!

A cold once underway is a cold hard to drive away! Let no cold endanger you. At the first chill or sneeze, take Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine. It usually makes short work of a cold because it is expressly a cold remedy and because it gets at a cold from the inside. A cold, you know, is an internal infection and calls for internal treatment.

Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine means COMPLETE relief because it is COMPLETE treatment. It does all the four things necessary. It opens the bowels, combats the cold germs and fever in the system, relieves the headache and grippy feeling and tones and fortifies the entire system. That's the action you want and anything less is taking chances. Get Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine at any druggist, 30c and 50c. Ask for it by the full name and accept no substitute.

Macon 'Destroyed,' 8 Navy Fliers Crash in Sea 'Battle'

At Sea With the United States Fleet, Nov. 6 (AP)—In her baptism as a unit of the United States fleet, the world's greatest sky ship, the U. S. S. Macon, was theoretically destroyed in maneuvers off the California coast.

The Macon, early in the maneuvers, found itself above the scouting force and promptly was put under theoretical gunfire of six light cruisers.

Four observation land-geared planes from the carrier Langley, after battling against high winds, dropped to sea in distress and the lives of all eight naval fliers aboard were saved only by prompt aid and the brilliant seamanship of the officers of the cruiser Cincinnati, the battleship Colorado and the tender Wright.

The Blue, or attacking fleet, obtained its objective of theoretical landing of an expeditionary force on San Nicolas Island, north of Catalina Island. The Macon maneuvered with the Blue fleet against the defending, or Brown, fleet.

MALDEN TRUST MAY DROP SUIT

Calgary, Nov. 16—The Malden Trust Company's action against the city of Calgary, an effort to obtain payment of Calgary City debentures in United States currency, may not come to trial, it was indicated. The firm's headquarters are in Malden, Mass.

City Solicitor L. W. Brockington, K. C., is conferring with the Trust Company solicitors in an effort to reach some decision in the matter.

The company holds $5000 worth of Calgary bonds. The bonds fell due January 1, last, but the city refused to meet payment in other than Canadian currency.

2 HURT AS AUTO TIPS 4 TIMES

Two students were injured today in a crash between their automobile and another machnie at Evans way and Louis Prang rd., The Fens, the car of the boy and girl student turning over four times.

Leo Clougherty, 18, of 15 Telegraph st. South Boston, driver of the student car, suffered a lacerated scalp and abrasions. His companion, Miss Catherine O'Donnell, 19, of 665 East Sixth st., South Boston suffered a fractured ankle and cuts and bruises.

Both were taken to the City Hospital by John Gray, a City Hospital nurse, who came along in his own car less than a minute after the crash.

Joseph C. Calapa of Burrill st. Roxbury, operator of the second car in the crash, escaped injury.

AMERICAN OIL DEALERS MEET

Salesmen, dealers and service station men, affiliated with the New England organization of the American Oil Co., which recently consolidated with the Pan American Petroleum & Transport Co. and its subsidiaries, including the Mexico Petroleum Corp., held an all day conference in Boston yesterday.

Company officials outlined an extensive program of activities for the merchandising of their new product, Amoco gasoline, a high compression motor fuel.

"Under the terms of the merger the American Oil takes over the distributing facilities of the entire group and will market petroleum products under its brand names throughout the territory formerly served by the organizations individually," said Jacob Blaustein, president of the American Oil Co. "The company expects to add many new retail outlets to the existing system in this territory, and this will put many new men to work and will give impetus to the drive for NRA."

Officials of the company accompanying President Blaustein to Boston and who addressed the meeting were Dr. Alvin Thalheimer, vice-president; C. F. Hatmaker, vice-president; G. M. Whelan, general manager and G. C. Stein, assistant general manager.

FRAUD PROBE IN FOUR CITIES

Election probes were under way in Cambridge, Chelsea, and Quincy today, a recount had been completed at Fitchburg, and Northampton Republicans were rolling up their sleeves for a mayorality caucus tonight.

Quincy recounts were being sought by friends of city council candidates in Wards 2 and 6 and by apparently defeated candidates in the city wide contest for school committee.

At Fitchburg, a completed recount upheld the election of mayorality candidate Robert E. Greenwood, son-in-law of Sen. Marcus A. Coolidge. Defeated candidate was Joseph M. Carriere. Greenwood only lost two votes in the re-check.

Northampton Republicans meet tonight to nominate a mayorality candidate to oppose James W. O'Connor, Democrat. He won his party's nomination over Mrs. Rose M. Hayes. John P. Foley is the Democratic candidate for city clerk.

Charges that supporters of Rep. William H. Melley, defeated by Mayor Lawrence Quigley in Chelsea's municipal election Tuesday, were told at gun-point that they had better vote "right" or face reprisals, are being investigated by State detectives.

The charges were made by Melley to Atty. Gen. Joseph E. Warner, who turned them over to Brig. Gen. Daniel Needham, commissioner of public safety, for investigation.

Melley said that voters were told that the manner in which they marked their ballots could be determined, and that if they voted for him, they would be "put on the spot."

He also declared that cars used by his workers to bring voters to the polls were stalled and otherwise interfered with in a campaign of intimidation that, he claims, lasted all of election day.

$1,200,000 Sought for Vermont Spans

Rutland, Vt., Nov. 15 (AP)—State officials and members of the federal advisory board for Vermont have conferred regarding a project to construct two bridges across Lake Champlain from Rouses Point, N. Y., to Vermont, with highways connecting with East Alburgh and Swanton. The cost would be $1,200,000.

It was expected the advisory board would make application next for allocation of federal funds for the work.

Brothers Guilty of Driving Charg

CAMBRIDGE SOMERVILLE MALDEN QUINCY LYNN BROCKTON

Revenge Killer Now Sought in Rockport Slaying

Rockport, Nov. 16—The fine-tooth comb of the state police today had gone over almost every inch of this little Cape Ann fishing town, apparently without shedding any new light on the identity of the murderer of Mrs. Augusta Johnson.

While the troopers hoped to complete their house-to-house questioning of every resident of the community today, their superiors were preparing for a week-end conference with Dist.-Atty. Hugh A. Cregg. At that time it will be decided whether evidence so far turned up warrants the arrest of any of the suspects in the case.

Working along these lines, the police have found time to develop a new theory of the crime. They now believe that Mrs. Johnson may have been killed by a person who appealed to her in vain for financial assistance.

They are also inclined to believe that another member of the congregation of the little Swedish church in Pigeon Cove, Arthur F. Oker, the village tailor, may have been the victim of the same person for the same reason. He was found dead May 21, 1932.

Some foundation for this theory was found, according to the police, in a foreclosure on record in the Salem courthouse.

THRESHER'S IN BIRTHDAY SALE

Despite the popularity of ready-made clothing, there is a greater demand for individual style in fabrics, Thresher Brothers, makers of quality fabrics, report.

C. H. Thresher, who founded the Thresher store 31 years ago this week at Temple pl., recalls the days when the majority of stores made yard goods of first importance, and read-to-wear clothes were looked upon as a fad. Today the sale of fabrics by the yard is just as popular, he declares, pointing to this week's sales response. This week Thresher Brothers are celebrating their 32nd aniversay with a sale at their Temple pl. store. The sale will end Saturday.

Complimenting the trend, the Thresher store opened a custom dressmaking department a year ago, where today expert tailors and dressmakers are busy turning out smart raiment for Boston's social set. For those who care to sew, the Thresher sewing school has become a social center, especially for business girls' sewing clubs.

Guardsman Found After Lake Blizzard

Houghton, Mich., Nov. 16—The Portage Canal Coast Guard Station here has been advised that Coast Guards Theodore Calinen of Munising, Mich., and Arthur Lewis of Duluth, missing in a picket boat since Sunday, are safe at Madeline Island near Bayfield, Wis.

It had been feared here that the men had been lost in the Great Lakes blizzard and hope for their survival virtually had been abandoned.

When You Take Medicine Take It Seriously

Poisonous impurities accumulating in the intestinal tract, resulting from constipation, often cause sluggishness, headaches, loss of appetite, and nervousness. Any of these conditions may develop into a menace to your efficiency and physical well-being. Serious thought should be given to the elimination of the cause of these symptoms.

AL SMITH IN SENATE; RASKOB IN TREASURY IS NEW SLATE

Copeland to Be Named Envoy to Open Way, N. Y. Paper Is Told; Fight Greets Morgenthau on New Job

New York, Nov. 16 (AP)—The Daily News in a copyrighted story today said that Alfred E. Smith's White House visit with President Roosevelt, according to a "person high in Democratic party circles," concerned the following shifts in administration personnel and the following appointments:

1. Resignation of William H. Woodin as secretary of the treasury and the appointment of John J. Rascob as his successor.

2. Resignation of Jesse Isidor Straus as United States Ambassador to France and appointment of United States Senator Royal S. Copeland as his successor.

3. Appointment by Gov. Lehman of Al Smith as Senator to take Copeland's place.

4. Designation of Postmaster General James A. Farley as the next Democratic candidate for Governor of New York to succeed Gov. Lehman, who, the News said, will not seek renomination.

Through such an arrangement, the News said, it is hoped to circumvent the advantage gained by the Fusionists in the recent election of Fiorello H. LaGuardia as mayor of New York and to rebuild the Democratic machine in the city. The paper added that it apparently means the ouster of John J. Curry as the leader of Tammany Hall.

Straus recently returned from Paris and was said to have been advised by his physicians to retire from the strenuous grind of international affairs. Nevertheless, the News said, Straus intended to return to Paris before Christmas.

More Heads to Fall in Treasury Shakeup

Washington, Nov. 16 (INS)—In the face of the dropping dollar abroad and declining bond prices at home, President Roosevelt moved today to bring the governmental financial setup more squarely in line with his commodity dollar managed currency policy.

The Treasury shakeup that sent William H. Woodin into temporary exile, and Under Secretary Dean Acheson into the discard, then elevated Henry Morgenthau, Jr., to the actual secretaryship, was said to be only the first of several such changes.

Morgenthau, close friend of Mr. Roosevelt and in thorough accord with his policies, takes the helm of the Treasury tomrrow. Woodin eventually is expected to resign permanently.

Eugene Black, governor of the Federal Reserve board it is believed will soon relinquish that post and return to the Federal Reserve Bank at Atlanta, from which he is now on leave.

Prof. O. M. W. Sprague, who resigned as financial adviser of the bank of England at $40,000 a year to take a treasury post here at a fraction of that salary is expected to retire. He has occupied a rather inconspicuous office in the treasury since returning from England in July, and never has figured prominently in administration financial policies.

Acheson, Black and Sprague have been reported lukewarm to the Roosevelt commodity dollar managed currency theory, expressed through the gold-purchase policy.

DOUGLASS MAY RETIRE

President Roosevelt today designated William I. Myers, deputy governor of the farm credit administration, to succeed Morgenthau as the governor.

Myers, a former professor of agriculture economics at Cornell, was brought to Washington by Morgenthau as his first assistant.

Another who may retire is Lewis Douglas, director of the budget, who has found somep hases of the new deal not to his liking. Douglas has been perhaps the most aggressive "sound money" man here.

Effect of the treasury changes will be closely watched at home and abroad. It is apparent Mr. Roosevelt is determined to pursue his gold-purchase plan in face of all opposition.

The dollar has drifted steadily downward and commodity prices have risen somewhat, although not as much as sponsors of the plan had hoped.

Sagging government bond prices at home has been the principal source of concern, for the government must shortly engage in bond operations on a huge scale to finance relief measures.

Failure of the policy to realize all that had been expected has been attributed to divided counsel among presidential advisers.

What part, if any, President Roosevelt's long conference with Bernard M. Baruch at the White House Tuesday night had to do with yesterday's shake-up is somewhat obscure.

Names? We'll Pay Taxi Bill Girls Decide

That psychological fact was proved last night by Patrolman Joseph Murphy at Franklin and Washington sts. It paid a $1.35 taxi fare, saved two girls from a trip to the station and permitted the officer to straighten things out with a minimum of trouble.

The girls rode from Dorchester in a cab. The meter said $1.35. The driver called the officer, who explained that a 15 cent fare for a 4-mile cab ride would be illegal.

"But 15 cents is all we have," said one of the girls.

"Then I'll have to take your names," said the officer.

Quickly, the girl, "who had only 15 cents," produced a $5 bill.

CHILD FIGHT IN MURREL CASE

San Antonio, Nov. 16 (US)—Regardless of the outcome of her charges against Lieut. John H. Murrel, Fort Sam Houston officer and former West Point football hero, Mrs. William L. Boisclair, who uses her maiden name of Blanche Ralls, faces a fight to retain custody of her 11-year-old son by the first of her two marriages.

Frank C. Walters, violin teacher of Danbury, Ct., today revealed he was Miss Ralls' first husband and said he would seek to have courts award him Frank C. Walters, Jr., now living with Miss Ralls' parents in Birmingham, Ala.

Walters at 35 and Miss Ralls then 16, were married, when he conducted the orchestra in a Birmingham film theater and she sold tickets there. In 1925, five years after their divorce, Mrs. Walters married another Birmingham man from whom she has been estranged several months. Walters has not seen his son since the divorce.

Murrel who faces a mandatory death sentence if found guilty of having attacked Miss Ralls on Fort Houston army reservation, is free on $5000 bail, and has resumed his duties.

Ships Stage Futile Hunt for 29 Adrift at Sea

London, Nov. 16 (INS)—Hope for the rescue of 29 seamen adrift in a raging north Atlantic storm after abandoning their ship, the British freighter Saxilby, 375 miles off Ireland, was abandoned today by the Berengaria, the Manchester Regiment and other ships, after a search of more than twelve hours.

It was believed all the boats were swamped by the mountainous seas, reported by the Berengaria's captain as "exceptionally high."

A second British freighter, the St. Quentin, was battling the seas with a broken steering gear, which her crew was attempting to repair. Other ships were asked to stand by to see if she could ride out the storm.

The Berengaria halted a New York to Cherbourg passage to aid in the rescue. The Saxilby, a 3630-ton vessel, was bound for Port Talbot, Wales, from Newfoundland. The St. Quentin was en route from Swansea, Wales, to Montreal.

Body of Vanderbilt Is Shipped to N. Y.

Savannah, Ga., Nov. 16—The body of William K. Vanderbilt, Jr., 26, scion of the famous New York family who lost his life in a South Carolina motor accident, is en route to New York by train.

Accompany the body is Erskine Gwynne, relative and companion, who received minor injuries as Vanderbilt's car crashed into a truck at Ridgeland, S. C. The youth's chauffeur, J. W. Guppy, who was injured seriously, remained in a Savannah hospital.

CITY IN DRIVE ON VENDORS

The Boston Better Business Bureau and James A. Sweeney, city sealer of weights and measures, are co-operating in a drive against transient vendors who, without the licenses required by law, try to cash in on Christmas business by temporarily occupying vacant stores.

The bureau pointed out today that these operators generally care nothing about customer satisfaction.

Sweeney issued a warning to all to comply with the law under which such transients are required to file a bond of $500 with the state director of standards and pay a local license fee or a tax on stock in trade.

You can see Barbara Hobors daily from 9 a. m. to 5:30 p. m. at the new free rental bureau on the fourth floor of the R. H. White Co.

TOUHY ARSENAL IS IDENTIFIED

St. Paul, Minn., Nov. 16 (INS)—Three revolvers, two automatic pistols, a rifle, adhesive tape, fine-spun rope and surgical gauze.

These were some of the mementoes exhibited to the jury today as the federal government tried to clinch its case against Roger Touhy and his three associates on trial for kidnaping William Hamm, Jr.

The witness who identified the hoodlums' playthings was Policeman Harry Ward of Elkhorn. He first told the story of watching for an automobile which knocked down a telephone pole, and arresting Touhy, the driver; Willis Sharkey, his companion in the front seat, and Eddie McFadden, Gus Schaefer and the other man. The fifth man escaped when the policeman took the crowd into Elkhorn.

It was still a moot point whether the government would be allowed to call John Factor as a witness.

FIGHT FOR MILK CODE IN 2 NEW AREAS OPENS

Embattled backers of the Boston milk code stood firm in support of new price and quality rules today while at Washington, a determined fight was quietly organized to tie up western Massachusetts and New Hampshire districts in a similar iron clad regime.

The New England Producers Association, the same group which composed and put into effect the present much-attacked Boston code, was represented at the national capitol today by its Boston manager, Wendell P. Davis.

Proposed enlargement of code control of milk prices and butterfat content will set up two new code districts, each with a director and an arbitration board of its own, but both subordinated, in final appeal, to Boston headquarters.

A western district will include most of Massachusetts not now in the general Boston group. A northern district will include Lowell, Lawrence, Haverhill and all of New Hampshire.

Firm backing of the New England Milk Producers' association is admittedly pledged to extension of the principles embodied in the Boston code.

So-called "big" milk companies are also behind the move to subordinate Western Massachusetts and New Hampshire to code "czar" control of milk production, processing distribution, and retail sale.

Organization of opposition to spread of code methods was under way today but with no campaign center to issue bulletins of recruiting and tactics.

Store chains, consumer groups and independent dairymen's association were understood to be leaders in the anti-code battle.

Public hearings on the code extension, announced today, will be at Springfield, Nov. 27, and at Lawrence, Nov. 29.

Here at Boston, Code Director Frederic S. Snyder maintained an unyielding attitude in defence of his new price boost to a minimum 12 cents per cent on home delivered milk.

He also was determined to gain federal approval of his rule limiting cream content of delivered milk in the Boston area.

Paris Cabinet Dares Ouster on Economy

Paris, Nov. 16 (AP)—The French Cabinet lined up today before what deputies called a "a political firing squad" by presenting the chamber with the first two disguised pay cut and economy measures similar to those on which the Paul-Boncour and Daladier ministries fell.

The present Cabinet, headed by Premier Albert Sarraut, listened to Georges Bonnet, Minister of Finance, describe the international situation and future treasury difficulties. Then it approved a bill for reductions of 3,008,000,000 francs (about $200,000,000) from the budget whose expenses approximate $3,350,000,000.

Rome Prisoner in Plot Tries Suicide

Rome, Nov. 16 (AP)—Commendatore Donato Battelli, charged with complicity in an extensive spy plot alleged to have been headed by former Deputy Umberto Bianci, was said by police to have attempted suicide during the night in Regina Coeli prison where he was held.

Battelli cut both his wrists with a broken drinking glass and was found under the covers of his bed in a serious condition. The prison physician said Battelli probably would lose a hand as a result.

Two Under Grill in Kidnaping of Hart

San Jose, Cal., Nov. 16 (INS)—Four men compose the kidnap gang which abducted Brooke Hart, 22, son of a wealthy department store owner, Sheriff William J. Emig said today on revealing that two members have been captured and now are being grilled.

The two men, he said, were "cracking" and ready to tell where young Hart is being held for $40,000 ransom.

Ex-Gov. Allen 'Picketed' But it Wasn't For Him

When former Gov. Frank G. Allen awoke today, he was amazed to find scores of persons in single file up and down the street in front of his home.

Immediate investigation of the presence of the large group disclosed that more than 400 men and women workers in two Norwood tanneries had abandoned their benches and gone on strike. The tanneries happen to be near the Allen home.

The striking tannery workers were employed in the plants of the Williams Bros. and Smith Tannery Co., and the Smith Tanning Co., separate companies.

The strike and the picket line posts were voted upon last night at a meting in Lithuanian Hall.

The strikers demand a wage increase of 25 per cent and recognition of the National Leather Workers' Union.

Police details are stationed at the factories.

Gang of 10 Art Thieves Is Sought

Boston police are making an intensive search for a gang of thieves with well-developed tastes for "the finer things" as the result of a series of baffling raids on art, lace and ware shops in the Back Bay.

Following the latest of these, the theft of a piece of Venetian lace valued at $350 from Zarow & Co., in Newbury st., Supt. of Police Martin H. King last night issued a special order for the arrest of the gang, which is believed to contain 10 members. However, it is believed that only two men and a woman are employed in each theft.

Husband's Parties Too Wet, So Wife Asks Divorce

Branding her husband as a bootlegger at times—and at times his own best customer—Mrs. Mary A. O'Leary of Spring st., Cambridge sought a divorce today in Middlesex probate court from Arthur J. O'Leary of Somerville.

O'Leary is contesting charges of cruelty and is also asking a decree.

Shortly after the marriage in 1926, O'Leary began arriving home drunk Saturday nights, his wife said explaining that he finally added Wednesday nights to his party list and later on combined both in one exciting Friday night every week.

Both formerly worked for a chain store and she works there now. She said that although he hit her, or tried to, with a cup, a stove lifter and a bottle of beer, she forgave him three times and rejoined him after a separation.

"When I would go through his pockets Thursday mornings, I would find only a few dollars left and receipts from Boston hotels," she told Judge Leggat.

A WORD TO THE PEOPLE OF BOSTON

There are a lot of words in this announcement, but don't skip a single one. It's the first of a series of important announcements which will have a definite dollars-and-cents value to you. It's the story of a big industry that has come to town. And even from the standpoint of civic interest, you will want to know all about it. Read on!

THIS is the story of a great consolidation.

Four great forces in the oil industry—leaders all—have become one. And out of this union is born a character of service new to the motorists of this great section.

The companies which have consolidated are:

AMERICAN OIL COMPANY
PAN AMERICAN PETROLEUM & TRANSPORT COMPANY
MEXICAN PETROLEUM CORP.
LORD BALTIMORE FILLING STATIONS, Inc.

Who Are They?

Where do they stand in the oil industry?

Together as a unit, these companies represent one of the major oil groups of the country—with very big resources, large available crude production and pipeline systems, refineries, complete research laboratories, large tank car and motor truck fleets, numerous ocean terminals, many hundreds of bulk plants, and thousands of service station outlets. A vast and far-flung system.

Leaders Individually Leaders Collectively

Individually, each company has risen to leadership in a specific field—through conspicuous merit of distinctive service and distinctive products.

Now collectively, they can offer to the motorists and industry of this territory and the entire Atlantic Seaboard—from Maine to Florida and inland—the benefits of all these fine facilities, and the distinctive products themselves—something never before possible.

In the series of announcements to follow, we'll tell you more about this great organization—its resources—its facilities—its products—under the theme . . .

"American" Marches Ahead!

PATRONE BABY HUNT TO COVER WHOLE OF U. S.

Plans to circularize the country with pictures and description of Jean Marie Patrone, 4, were discussed at police headquarters today while her mother, Mrs. Eunice Patrone, calmly knitted a sweater in a Charles st. jail cell to which she was committeed for refusing to reveal her daughter's whereabouts to the court.

Samuel L. Segal, counsel for Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Nickerson, the legal foster parents whose decree of custody Mrs. Patrone is defying, conferred with Police Supt. Martin H. King and said he would supply the pictures and description for the circulars.

King said he would broadcast the circulars and he planned to confer with legal authority for advice on whether an arrest may be made if the child is found, and on what charge.

FOSTER PARENT ILL

Mrs. Nickerson, according to Segal, is ill from anxiety over Jean Marie's welfare.

Mrs. Patrone was sentenced to an indeterminate term for contempt of court by Judge Arthur W. Dolan when she refused to give up the child after he had decided against her in adoption proceedings instituted by the Nickerson family, who had boarded the child for two years.

A number of letters have been received by both contestants in the strange case.

"Stick to what you have done," writes a mother from Maine, to Mrs. Patrone. "Money has too much to do with justice. A little time in jail won't hurt you. It is an honor for a woman to go to jail for what is hers."

MOTHER FILES PROTEST

A woman who signed herself, "Just Another Mother," sent the following letter to Mrs. Nickerson protesting her action in the case:

"As one woman to another I am writing to you to ask you to consult your heart and conscience and change your mind about insistently wanting that little baby, if what you say about your love for that baby is true.

"Then it must be equally true that your heart must suffer at the thought that another woman just like you, and that one the child's real blood mother, is suffering in jail, and you, the only one that can take her out of jail are sitting back and letting her suffer."

BLONDE SOUGHT IN ATTACK

Police were today seeking an attractive blonde who stood by on Carol ave., Brighton, while her escort beat up Morris Gasman, 52, of 115 Lawrence ave., Roxbury.

The girl and youth escaped in an auto, and gasman, picked out of the gutter with a possible skull fracture, was taken to St. Elizabeth's Hospital.

He told police he had left his tailor shop at 117 Brighton ave., on his way home, and was unexpectedly assaulted by the youth who he was unable to identify. George Miller of Everett st., Allston, saw the assault, and saw the couple get away in an auto.

Diet for Cows Gives Cure for Goiter

Richmond, Va. Nov. 16 (AP)—Cows fed a special diet will give milk rich in iodine content, an important factor in the treatment of goiter, Dr. William Weston of the South Carolina Food Research Laboratory told the Southern Medical Association here.

Goiter is present in sections of the United States where there is little idodine present in the soil, he said.

In experiments conducted by the South Carolina Food Research Laboratory cows were given a special diet of foodstuffs having high iodine content. Dr. Weston said children who drank the milk from these cows developed more rapidly, both mentally and physically, than children who drank ordinary milk.

Secretary Wallace Gives Critics of NRA His Idea of Its Purpose

Secretary of Agriculture Wallace in a speech yesterday, says the Chicago Tribune of last Tuesday, criticized the attitude of city folk towards the recovery program as expressed in Chicago newspapers. This viewpoint, he said, is "far more dangerous than the outbreaks in Iowa." The criticism was uttered in a last minute departure from the text of Mr. Wallace's prepared speech.

The secretary, who is responsible for carrying through the federal farm adjustment program, spoke before the Association of Land Grant colleges in the Sevens Hotel. Starting out to deliver an academic discussion of the relief measures for agriculture and the problems that would follow the present emergency activities, he turned abruptly to a clipping in his hand which he described only as an editorial from a Chicago evening newspaper.

FACING THE FACTS

"If people of Chicago cannot become possessed of a more statesmanlike knowledge of the national crisis," he shouted, pounding on the table, "the consequences will be such that Chicago must surely become an ash heap. I admit that the processing tax is unpopular. But it is justified if for no other reason than that it brings us more promptly to realization of our predicament."

Quoting from the newspaper clipping which described the advancing city living costs to meet the expense involved in the program of farm production control, Wallace declared that "it is damnable to set class against class."

"Details of our plans may be subjected to criticism," continued the secretary," but the plan itself is an effort to face the facts and to correct a situation resulting from 15 years of failure to face resolutely our responsibilities as a creditor nation that also is an exporting nation.

"I don't like the idea of compulsion in making the readjustments in our output that must be made. I would much rather see increased foreign purchasing power come by the reduction of tariffs. But it became necessary for us to take the expedient course at our command."

DEPENDS ON WAGES

Mr. Wallace pleaded for a realization by city wage earners of the fact that the wage earners and farmer have fared equally in recent years and that "gross income of farmers has no more than kept pace with wages" since the recovery program was started.

"I have tried to make it clear to farmers, and to the Western governors who sought price fixing and a rapid price increase," he added, "that farm prices cannot rise as fast as we wanted because the income of purchasers just isn't there to make it possible."

Mr. Wallace likened the NRA and AAA programs to the two legs of a man, who, he said, could not advance one leg much farther than the other. In June and July, he said, the leg of the farmer had been ahead, and in August, September and October the leg representing industry had gained advantage.

"It is impossible to keep an even balance between the two," he said, "yet both must move ahead if we are to bring about recovery. Higher prices of consumer goods, it must be realized, either bring increased pay rolls or increased income to distributors and in time they must be reflected in greater purchasing power for all."

Mr. Wallace told the heads of the land grant colleges, upon whom depends actual operating process involved in carrying out the crop reduction program through the state colleges and rural extension services, that "all of us will be subjected to great pressure from the extreme right and left—business interests on one hand and radicals on the other. There is danger of being swept off our feet without thinking their proposals through."

The secretary defended the professors in the "Brain Trust" as being "more immune to pressure of this sort than any men I know of," because, he said, they have trained minds to attack a problem and see it through.

The taking out of production of between 30 and 35 million acres of land in major crops during 1934, Mr. Wallace said, has brought the nation face to face with the land utilization problem. He characterized the land policy of President Roosevelt as such that "in time it may be recognized as the most important departure in American land policy since the homestead act."

This land policy, announced last July, was described by the secretary as the taking out of production of as much submarginal or waste land as could produce crops to be grown on lands being reclaimed. This land, taken out of production and returned to the public domain, is to be "kept out unless and until there is need for it"; one acre of reclaimed land might call for the retirement of several acres of waste land.

DIFFICULTIES AHEAD

"There are tremendous difficulties ahead in the execution of this policy," asserted Mr. Wallace." "I know we can dispose of them, but we can best do so by facing them realistically at the outset. Local demands for government funds with which to reclaim new lands will have to be examined with the utmost care. The record of past government ventures in reclamation is not exactly studded with shining successes."

To show what could be done in readjustment of agrarian lands, Mr. Wallace cited figures to prove that half of the farms of the nation could be taken out of commercial production and the total output be reduced by only 11 per cent. On the other hand, he pointed out that many of the miners and other industrial workers now being permanently thrown out of occupations through economic changes, came originally from farms.

"It is too early to say with any assurance whether or not these workers have gone back to farms to stay there. But there are signs and portents that the rush to the cities of past decades may not be repeated."

Secretary Wallace gave only a brief discussion of the present emergency efforts to curtail cotton, wheat, tobacco, corn, and hog production, describing them as having been "remarkably successful." He admitted that "we have made hundreds of mistakes," but said that this was to be expected where so many thousand people were involved, and that "the surprise to me is that there have not been more mistakes."

The most hopeful sign, he declared, was that millions of people, and especially farmers, who had come to be independent operators and thinkers, were beginning to consider their operations from a national and international point of view.

"In spite of the malcontents," said Mr. Wallace, "they are beginning to get the feeling of a common goal voluntarily and intelligently approached."

WARNS OF PREJUDICES

But he added the warning that "if selfish, bitter prejudices enter in too much, the nation may find it necessary eventually as a matter of self-preservation to use compulsion. I hope that such measures will not be necessary, because I regard them as against the inmost spirit of the American farmer as I know him."

After his address Mr. Wallace made an effort to allay the fears of the college leaders and corps of governmental employes who had gathered to hear him. He said that even though the administration is spending millions in reducing production it does not intend to relax scientific research and investigation. He said he intended to use his efforts to combat any tendency toward curtailing the expenditures for extension and educational work in agruculture.

"With all of this there is hope of progress being made in this nation and among the nations toward a higher plane of spiritual life," he asserted. "We are moving toward the position where wealthy men cannot get more than 10 to 15 times the incomes of good workmen—which is in reality the heart of the new deal."

Holland Called in Judge Lowell Case

Judge Bert E. Holland, while presiding today in West Roxbury district court, was served with a summons to appear as a witness before the House judiciary subcommittee at Washington in connection with the attempt to impeach Federal Judge James A. Lowell of Boston.

The summons was served by Deputy U. S. Marshal Fred Devereaux.

Efforts are being made to impeach Judge Lowell for his decision in the case of George Crawford, Negro, alleged slayer of two women in Virginia, whom he ordered freed because Negroes were barred from grand jury service in that State.

Judge Lowell was overruled by the U. S. Supreme Court in the Crawford case. His decisions in the "jamaica ginger" cases are also under investigation.

Unwritten Law Is Defense of Wife who Slew Rival

Dallas, Tex., Nov. 16 (INS)—Texas justice today faced the task of prosecuting Mrs. L. W. Boone, 37-year-old mother who shot to death her love rival, Mrs. Pearl Hall, 30, before her husband's eyes.

Held in jail without bond on the charge of slaying the comely brunette widow, Mrs. Boone admitted taking Mrs. Hall before her husband, L. W. (Dan) Boone, in their small apartment and there shooting her.

Officers said Mrs. Boone would base her defense on the unwritten law that justifies slaying for the invasion of a home. That self-defense might also be her plea was indicated when Mrs. Boone told investigators she thought Mrs. Hall was about to attack her.

The examining trial was set for Saturday. The extreme penalty in Texas for murder is electrocution.

The wife admitted luring the comely widow to the Boone apartment.

During the automobile ride, Mrs. Boone said the widow, not recognizing her as Boone's wife, told of her associations with him.

Taking her love rival into the bedroom, she awakened her husband.

"Now tell him what you have been telling me." Mrs. Boone commanded.

"She knows all about us," Mrs. Hall cried.

As Boone started toward the two women his wife drew the pistol and fired.

3 SLAYERS GET LIFE IN MAINE

Houlton, Me. Nov. 16—Three men have been sentenced to life imprisonment for murders here after one had been convicted by a jury and the others had entered pleas of guilty.

Edmund Cote, 37, accused of fatally wounding James Young, Blaine store keeper, in a holdup, was found guilty in 37 minutes.

Mrs. Matilda Burlock of Mars Hill and Lynn, Mass., indicted as an accessory to the Young murder, faces the jury today.

Calvin Morgan, 37, who pleaded not guilty to the murder of Frank Curtis, Sherman Mills Deputy Sheriff, and then retracted was sentenced for life.

Percy Paul young Indian, who clubbed to death Sterling Thibodeau, 7, of Perham was the third respondent to be sentenced to life.

John Percival will also sing on this program. The orchestra will be conducted by Sid Reinherz.

Ford Spikes Report of Rum Prosecution

Liquor cases will continue to be prosecuted in Federal court after prohibition, U. S. Atty. Francis J. W. Ford declared. He said he had not heard of any report that they would be dropped.

MARTHA LEE AT COBB KARNIVAL

The cooking school at Cobb, Bates & Yerxa Food Karnival will be conducted Friday by Martha Lee, Home Economics Editor of the Boston American. A large number of graduates from the American cooking school are expected.

Yesterday's session at the Karnival again attracted a throng of women. Imogene Wolcott talked on vitamines and Marjorie Mills gave interesting instruction on planning meals on low-cost budgets. Demonstrations of cookery by Carolyn Bixby brought enthusiastic applause.

Poems of a humorous and serious nature were read by Agnes Carr, as part of the entertainment program. Prize winners yesterday were as follows: C. C. Smith, 102 Edwin st., Lynn; Thelma R. Levy, 607 Martin st., Mattapan; W. L. Hellett, 65 Green st., Boston; Christina Crowley, 32 Tremont st., Winchester; Mrs. La Pierce, 31 Farina st., Dorchester; Mrs. Foye, 66 Alban st., Dorchester; Mrs. George H. Holmes, 27 Somerset rd., West Medford; Mrs. T. P. Keegan, 503 Cambridge st., Allston; Mrs. Noble, 24 Church st., Boston.

NORRIS' RADIO SUIT NEAR END

Washington, Nov. 16 (INS)—Whether radio broadcasting stations may be sued as a result of political speeches was before the Supreme court for decision today.

The Nebraska Supreme court held station KFAB of Lincoln, subject to suits, and upheld a verdict against it. Sen. George W. Norris and W. M. Stebbins were battling for the Republican nomination for United States Senator at the time.

Richard F. Wood made statements on behalf of Stebbins. The broadcasting company was exonerated and a verdict for $1 was returned against Wood. Suit was pressed against the station. The company paid the judgment and appealed again to the state court, which upheld it.

The radio station claimed exemption from suits because it is licensed under the federal radio act. The state court, however, held that even if the act applied it would be in conflict with the Federal Constitution.

NRA Is a Delusion, Foundrymen Told

New York, Nov. 16 (INS)—Leaders of the National Founders Association disbanded today after having been told at their meeting here that the administration's recovery efforts were a delusion and a snare.

They had been addressed by Virgil Jordan, economist and president of the National Industrial Conference Board. He said:

"We ought to understand that the idea that any specific policies of the administration, or any legislative measures applying those policies, have been primarily responsible for the improvement in prices, employment and production since March is a delusion which will not stand scientific, statistical or economical analysis."

Connecticut Drops Into Red $5,228,974

Hartford, Nov. 16 (INS)—The state general fund was "in the red" by $5,228,974 on Oct. 31, as compared with a favorable balance of $391,415 at the same time last year, State Finance Commissioner Edward F. Hall reported today.

U. S. AND SOVIET PACT NEARS

Washington, Nov. 16 (AP)—Fresh hope for a solution of the American-Russian negotiations by tomorrow night was expressed today at the White House as President Roosevelt and M. Litvinoff arranged for another meeting this evening.

The President was termed hopeful of concluding the talks which may lead to a recognition of the Soviet government before he leaves for the South tomorrow night.

Intricate issues such as wheat export quotas were receiving attention today. This was attributed by officials to Mr. Roosevelt's desire to aid farm prices by preventing a glut on world markets.

An effort will be made to induce Russia to subscribe to the gentlemen's agreement for wheat control already approved by other producing nations.

Malden Beer Board Loses Fourth Permit Joust

Fred J. Velmure will dispense beer and wines despite the Malden license commission. His appeal to the state alcoholic beverage commission has been sustained and the Malden board has been ordered to issue a license to Velmure.

The Malden commission ruled the district in which Velmure sought to operate is residential and as one license had been issued for that locality a second license was prohibited.

The state commission finds that Velmure is equipped to operate, that a petition signed by 75 nearby residents had been filed asking that Velmure be granted a license, and that there was no evidence why such a permit would operate contrary to the spirit of the law.

This is the fourth case in which the state commision has overruled the action by the Malden commission.

W. Roxbury Legion Plans Bridge Party

West Roxbury Post, 167, of the American Legion, and the Ladies' Auxilary, will conduct a harvest bridge and whist party at Legion Hall, 1336 Center st., on Friday evening. Joseph Nolan is general chairman.

POET CODE SETS 35 HOURS MUSE

Washington, Nov. 16 (AP)—And now a code for the poets and poetesses.

It was filed with the NRA by Earl A. Cuevas of Washington, president of the poet laureate league. It would keep the poet from working the muse more than 35 hours a week. The poet, not the muse, would be guaranteed a minimum weekly wage of $100; if the rhymes were syndicated, the minimum would be $200.

TOMATO AND GREEN PEPPER SCALLOP

This may be made with either fresh or canned tomatoes. Use about half the bulk of tomatoes of soft bread crumbs. For each cup of crumbs melt ¼ cup of butter. Put 2 tablespoons of butter in the sauce pan and mix the rest of the butter with the crumbs. To the butter in the sauce pan add a finely sliced onion and ½ a green pepper, which has been finely shredded. Stir and cook until the onion and pepper are tender, then mix with the crumbs. Arrange the crumbs and tomatoes in alternate layers in a baking dish. Sprinkle each layer with salt and pepper ,and have the last layer of the crumbs. Bake about 20 minutes in a moderate oven. The onion may be omitted if desired.

GREEN CORN BREAD

1 cup flour
1 tbsp. sugar
1½ tsp. salt
2 tsps. baking powder
2½ cups green corn, cut from cob, or
1 can canned corn
1 egg, beaten
2 tbsps. melted shortening

Sift the flour, sugar, salt and baking powder. Add gradually to the corn. Add the beaten egg and shortening and pour into an eight-inch square pan. Bake in a moderate oven (400 F.) for about 30 minutes. Serve hot with plenty of butter.

MARLBORO PIE

2 cups hot apple sauce
2 tbsps. butter
Yolks 4 eggs
½ cup sugar
1 lemon
½ cup cracker crumbs
Whites of 4 eggs
4 tbsps. powdered sugar
Juice of ½ lemon

Stew the apples and strain. Stir in butter while apples are hot. Add sugar to the beaten yolks and beat again. Mix with cold apple. Stir in juice of lemon and ½ rind grated and the crumbs. Line and rim a plate with rich pastry. Fill and bake, and when done cover with meringue made with whites, powdered sugar and lemon juice. Brown slightly and serve cold.

SHRIMP AND CORN PIE

2 cups drained, canned corn
2 eggs, slightly beaten
2 tbsps. melted shortening
2-3 cup milk
1 cup shrimps (raw or canned)
1 tsp. salt
½ tsp. pepper
1 tsp. onion juice
1 green pepper (sliced)

To the corn add eggs, onion, green pepper, milk, seasoning and shrimps. Put in baking dish rubbed with shortening. Cover with plain pastry. Bake in hot oven at 450 degrees F. for 10 minutes until pastry begins to brown. Then lower heat to 350 degrees F. for 15 minutes longer to bake.

SMOTHERED CHICKEN

Season pieces of chicken well and brown them in a big flat frying pan. Use a generous half cupful of half cooking fat and half butter. While the chicken browns (it will take about 10 or 15 minutes, depending upon how much chicken your family is good for) simmer the giblets in three cupfuls of water. You use this giblet stock to make the gravy. When the chicken is nice and crisp and brown take it off the fire and put it in a shallow bake pan. Now add 3 tbsps. flour to the fat in the pan, brown it and pour in slowly the giblet stock, stirring so there won't be a sign of a lump. Add a trifle more water if you think you're skimping on the gravy. When it has thickened, add the chopped giblets, taste for seasoning, then put this gravy over the chicken in the pan. Add a cupful of chopped mushrooms if you like. Let the chicken cook slowly in the oven until the meat falls from the bones. An hour and a half won't be too much if the oven temperature is not over 325 degrees F. Serve this fine bird with a good spattering of minced parsley.

SANDWICH FILLING

Cream 1 tbsp. flour and one tbsp. butter, and ⅓ cup of mild vinegar and cook slowly, stirring constantly, until thickened. Add ½ cup of cream, 1 cream cheese. Season to taste with salt and pepper. Blend well and add last, two eggs, hard cooked, chopped fine, and one can of pimientos, finely chopped. Cool and use with either white or dark bread, or a combination of the two, having one slice of white bread spread with the filling and topped with a slice of dark bread.

CERMAK KIDNAP GANG PAID OFF

Miami, Fla., Nov. 16—Despite denials of the story from the child's mother, Dade County authorities today pushed an investigation into an alleged plot to kidnap the granddaughter of the late Mayor Anton Cermak of Chicago.

W. W. Wood, Miami politician, in a sworn statement to County Solicitor Fred Pine, said the alleged kidnapers demanded a total of $63,000 under threats to kidnap three-year-old Mary Alice Kenlay, daughter of Mrs. Helen Cermak Kenlay of Chicago, and later threatened to kill the child, its mother and himself.

Pine further quoted Wood as saying he had already paid the alleged kidnapers $[illegible].

Pine made public Wood's statement when he filed an information in Circuit Court charging [illegible] Swaley with attempting to extort $13,000 from Wood and with attempting to kill him. Swaley is being held by Chicago authorities in connection with recent kidnap plots.

POLLY MORAN TO BE STARRED BY RADIO -:- McCREA IN BARBARA STANWYCK FILM

Chaplin May Refilm "Woman of Paris" as Talkie With Lead Played by Miss Goddard

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS
Motion Picture Editor Universal Service

Los Angeles, Nov. 16. Polly Moran without Marie Dressler is the plan at Radio studios. You see in the past Polly has figured as a Dressler postscript without being given very much on her own. Now she is under contract to make two pictures at Radio studios and it's the aim of the boys in charge of Radio production to see that Polly proves her mettle [illegible] performance.

Chatter in Hollywood

Remember Handsome William Gill, formerly in the tailoring business with Larry Wheat, now an agent and at one time married to Renee Adoree? Bill is courting Janet Snowden, New York heiress and bride of a prince for three days. Miss Snowden left her prince after three days of marriage. She is seen at this night spot and that one with Bill Gill, and rumor hounds say it's the beeg rumor. Seems there was nothing but a passing friendship between the heiress and Jack La Rue.

Ruth Shubow at Jordan Hall

Ruth Shubow at Jordan Hall

By MOSES SMITH

The tritest generality of the music reviewer is that a virtuoso technic is now taken for granted, for thousands of students are apparently able to play all the notes that ingenious composers cram into a score.

Ruth Shubow, Boston pianist, who spent several years in Germany, is an exception to this rule. Patently she was having difficulty in making music for lack of the essential dexterity. The Brahms sonata in F sharp minor requires an all-around technic as well as powers of endurance before one can begin to apply oneself to musical problems. Even Mozart—or perhaps I ought to say, above all, Mozart—cannot be neatly played without sure fingers.

I can understand that nervousness could account for an occasional slip in the Mozart A major sonata, and even for consistent over-pedalling and muddy pedaling. But alone it could not account for the inarticulateness of much of the Mozart and the Brahms and of the Chopin at the end of the program.

Organ Venture Sets Pace

By HARRIS MORGAN

At the moment there is a pronounced revival of interest in the consoles in theaters all over the country. Long discussed in some places, they are again coming into use and favor. Credit for the renewed interest may be accorded the venture at RKO Keith's, where the Crawfords have been playing for the past seven weeks.

Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Crawford were brought on by Charles Koerner, RKO regional director, as an experiment. Jesse Crawford thought it would go over. Koerner was willing to try it for a week. So the Crawfords came. They presented a half hour program, a novelty for its length and [illegible] for its musical delights. So they were held the second week, and then the third.

It is not the first time that Keith's has pioneered. [illegible] the first [illegible] in New England were shown at this house. COURTNEY BURR PRINCE OF PRODUCERS

His 'All Good Americans' for Plymouth

By GEORGE HOLLAND

Both Hope Williams, star of "All Good Americans," and Courtney Burr, producer of this new comedy slated for a Monday opening at the Plymouth are indigenous to Park ave. Miss Williams rates no more than 10 paces behind the parade of the 400, if indeed she is not loping in her free-wheeling stride right in the middle of the socially-elect.

• • •

Mr. Burr is bona-fide of that class although if we are not wrong his distinguished father made his millions by the invention and merchandising of something memory turns up as a prophylactic tooth brush.

Hope Williams

Anyway, although I don't know Miss Williams except as an artist, Mr Burr is one of the most thoroughly real persons one would wish to meet. He came to Broadway with a quarter of a million dollars prompted on behalf of the arts and all the unemployed stars of the Broadway musical scene, and passed it over to E. Ray Goetz. Mr Goetz proceeded to steer Mr Burr through an enlightening novitiate as the producer of "The New Yorkers."

Hope Williams was in that famous cast. This was the play that grossed something like $42,000 a week at the renovated Hollywood theater in upper Broadway and was able, nevertheless, to show a substantial loss.

It was in this association that Miss Williams must have formed an attachment for Mr. Burr, and if reports of her salary in those lush days weren't erroneous we think she is a clever girl.

But this piece, brief, concerns Mr. Burr. Here is a gentleman of the romantic school. His firm and unshatterable chin survived a right from the public's belt that connected through the medium of a bad revue called "Walk A Little Faster," which you may have seen last season with Clark and McCullough and Beatrice Lillie in the featured roles.

Owns Current Hit

Mr Burr, when last I met him the past spring in his sparsely furnished offices on 42d st., had communicated an afternoon-salon touch to the whole dismal proceeding of being out to creditors. Perhaps right here should be mentioned that he has become owner since of New York's biggest dramatic money maker "Sailor, Beware" and this will be more interesting.

The afternoon-salon air was deepened by Mr. Burr's genius at mixing cocktails. He is a student of that art, and a gracious host. I shall never forget Mr Burr's thrilling story of his encounter with a Norwegian nobleman who at first telling was a mere count but increased in nobility to either a prince or king as the Burr recountal of a duel with rapiers progressed.

This duel started in either the south of England or the north of Italy and remained fixed in the locale of the Riviera until Mr. Burr got into the actual spirit of prize raconteur-ing. Then the duel moved to the ice-floes of the Scandinavian peninsulars, where it was fought to a righteous finish with broadswords as victory for Mr. Burr.

Key Turned

No whit disheartening to this reminiscence of more exciting days was the fact that the key had been turned on Mr. Burr that day, so that it was impossible for him to gain either entrance for himself or egress for his wardrobe from the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel. I say that here was a man. May the fates of the theater speed his coming to Boston and may his opening be not beset with postponements.

I wish to hear about that duel again and check with Mr. Burr on his choice of weapons. Twice he mentioned pistols on my last listening. But I recall there was some mention of polar bears and the bullets no doubt were for the beasts, not his adversary.

I think it fitting here to warn whoever is staging a bill-board "teaser" campaign, featuring a line "The Americans Are Coming," that Mr. Burr's press agent, the agile-minded Richard Maney, was mumbling something early today about "sniping" pictures of Hope Williams over the 24 sheets that tell of the Americans' expected coming. Mr. Maney thought the public might confuse the slogan with his title, "All Good Americans," thus working out to the eventual betterment of the nightly receipts at the Plymouth next week.

Two Brilliant Luminaries at Wits' Ends

Lionel Barrymore and Marie Dressler, in scene from "Christopher Bean," which has world premiere at State.

Lionel is nonplussed and Marie is quizzical. This is a merry comedy about a maid and a dead artist's paintings.

Helen Hayes, starring in "Night Flight," at Loew's Orpheum tomorrow. Miss Hayes is also to be seen as star in stage play, "Mary of Scotland," at Colonial.

State Changes Its Opening

Thursday will be the opening day each week at Loew's State. "Christopher Bean" inaugurated this new policy today.

This means that all coming attractions playing Loew's State will run from Thursday to Wednesday inclusive. As in the past, the State will continue to feature first run screenings of all Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer and United Artists pictures, including those of the newly formed Twentieth Century Corp. Following "Christopher Bean" comes "The Prizefighter and the Lady," co-starring Myrna Loy, Max Baer, Primo Carnera and Jack Dempsey, and "Dancing Lady," co-starring Joan Crawford and Clarke Gable.

Gayety Theater

The Gayety has a new program today. On the screen will be shown "Lady for a Day," with May Robson, Warren William, Jean Parker and Guy Kibbee. The co-feature is "The Rustlers' Roundup," with Tom Mix, Diane Sinclair and Tom Mix's new pony, Tony, Jr. Five new vaudeville acts round up the remainder of the bill.

Secret Gold of Poor Miner Discovered in Bank

San Francisco, Nov. 16—Five years after their brother died leaving barely enough money to pay for his funeral, William L. White and Miss Katherine White of Old Orchard, Me., have discovered he had gold bullion worth $13,788 in a bank safe deposit box here.

If a rating as "newly mined gold" were set upon the bullion, wrapped carefully in newspapers dated 1912, it would be worth more than a third again as much.

James H. White, believed to have been a miner, died in Berkeley in 1928, aged about 60, leaving $374. William White was then believed the only heir and arranged for the funeral.

The gold was discovered after the bank, failing to get rental payments for the safe deposit box, finally located Miss Katherine White, whose name had been given it by James White as a joint tenant to the box, though the formalities never were completed, and the sister knew nothing of the gold. The box was opened here and Miss White notified of the find.

J. Leonard Rose has moved in Probate Court to re-open the estate in Probate Court, declaring that in addition to the Whites, the heirs are a nephew and niece, A. Fitzgibbons and Miss Helen Fitzgibbons, of Old Orchard Beach, Me. Public Administrator Albert E. Hill asked to be again appointed administrator.

The Keyhole on the News

Roost

That old, old family argument about who works the hardest, husband or wife, came up again in the Constantino home.

Atty. George Constantino tried the time-honored masculine bluff.

"Tell you what, Margaret," he told his lady, "you're a law school graduate. Well, tomorrow you take over my office. I'll housekeep, and we'll see how it works."

"Suits me," Mrs. Constantino agreed. "But don't forget. There'll be the baby to tend, the dishes to wash, the carpets to vacuum, the beds to make, the market ordering to be done and oh, yes, that reminds me, Thanksgiving is almost here. Do you think, my love, you can roast the family turkey?"

Husband Con[illegible] right there. [illegible] And he had [illegible] about him.

Naughty Mae

Too much preoccupation with feminine curves has brought a stern faculty warning to editors of a student newspaper which is published not a million miles from downtown Boston.

Purported interviewing of coeds on desirability of a Mae West figure is supposed to be the reportorial straw which broke the back of college administration tolerance.

As Per Order

He's the kind of a husband who gives plenty of directions so his meek little bride can do things right around the house.

He was especially detailed in his orders concerning cooking of the rabbit. He'd shot it himself on a week-end hunting trip with Dr. Charles Perry, [illegible] man-physician, and he wanted it roasted "like the [illegible] do at camp."

Patiently, every [illegible] explained how to stuff the [illegible] what herbs [illegible] how to [illegible] how long [illegible] bake. He even wrote out the recipe [illegible] couldn't go wrong.

When the [illegible] was finally served, however, the piece de resistance had a queerly unappetizing look.

Little wife's blue eyes were wide with astonished innocence.

"In your written instructions," she said, "as you can see for yourself, there was nothing about skinning—so I only singed the brute."

ROBBER SHOOTS OUT OF TRAP

Sixteen Indiana state policemen and Chicago detectives chased Dillinger, accompanied by a woman and another man, through the city last night after "bottling" up his auto at a physician's office.

But in the end it was the police who were forced to retreat as bullets from a machine gun in his car poured forth from a porthole and spattered windshields of the cars of his pursuers.

Training as Newsboy -:- Leads to Mayoralty

THOMAS SHULMAN MAYOR PAUL S. EATON

This is the fourth in a series of interviews with city and towns officials on the matter of boys who devote their spare time to selling newspapers and acquiring a business sense. Any boy who resides outside of Boston but who wishes to join the Boston Evening American newsboy organization is invited to write to Thomas Shulman of the Boston Evening American circulation department, 5 Winthrop Square, Boston.

By Mayor Paul S. Eaton, Mayor of Beverly, Massachusetts

"One of the greatest assets in the life of the newsboy is the experience derived from the selling of papers. I speak from experience as I sold papers in Milton, while between the ages of eight and thirteen. Besides a financial return, there is the teaching of salesmanship and the meeting of people which is very important in the life of our young people. I commend the work of the Boston Evening American and hope that many Beverly boys will take advantage of this opportunity."

NRA WILL HEAR GOUGING CASES

Washington, Nov. 16 (AP)—The NRA hopes next month to prove or disprove oft-heard assertions that profiteering merchants and manufacturers are gouging the public.

Public hearings on the question will start Dec. 12 with only the industries under NRA codes subjected to scrutiny. At these hearings the NRA announced, any person may submit charges that he or she paid more than increased costs justified. Those complained against also may be heard. Those desiring to appear personally must notify Deputy Administrator Arthur D. Whiteside by Dec. 2.

By the time that hearing is over, NRA officials said they expected Hugh S. Johnson, administrator, would have ready, or already in force, a new plan to obtain better compliance with codes and Blue Eagle re-employment agreements.

Welles Coming to See Roosevelt on Cuba

Washington, Nov. 16 (AP)—A full report on conditions in strife-torn Cuba will be submitted to President Roosevelt at Warm Springs, Ga., by Sumner Welles, United States Ambassador to the island republic.

The meeting may result in American recognition, so far withheld, of the government set up by President Grau San Martin.

Welles asked the conference, the State Department announced. After the conference Mr. Welles will return to Havana.

There are 6 types of home-grown tobaccos that are best for cigarettes

BRIGHT TOBACCOS
U. S. Types 11, 12, 13, 14.
BURLEY TOBACCO
U. S. Type 31.
SOUTHERN MARYLAND TOBACCO
U. S. Type 32.

U. S. Type 11 is produced in the Piedmont Belt of Virginia and part of North Carolina.

U. S. Type 12 is produced in eastern North Carolina.

U. S. Type 13 grows in South Carolina.

U. S. Type 14 is produced mostly in southern Georgia—a few million pounds in northern Florida and Alabama.

U. S. Type 31 includes what is called White Burley tobacco. It was first produced by George Webb in 1864. It is light in color and body, and is milder than the Burley used for pipes.

U. S. Type 32, Maryland tobacco, is noted for its "burn". In this respect Maryland excels most other tobaccos.

Chesterfield ages these tobaccos for 30 months —2½ years—to make sure that they are milder and taste better.

MAGRATH CALLED IN AUTO POLICY DEATH PROBE

This Is Life

—By ROBERT E. ROGERS—

There is an awful lot of nonsense being talked about the changes that repeal of prohibition will make in our national life. For instance, listen to these words from a New York chef

"It means that we shall have good cooking in the United States again. It means that again we shall have good, substantial foods — game and wild fowl prepared in the only way that is proper, with wine and cordials and brandies." He went on to speak enthusiastically of the restoration of woodcock, pheasant, quail, wild duck and venison, and especially of the many desserts that cannot be prepared without wines and cordials.

"Even your turkey does not taste right if you have to wash it down with water."

The American Federation of Musicians expects that repeal will open hundreds of dining and dancing places, in which musicians will be employed to the number of thousands, now without jobs.

Not only that, but the president of the union put himself on record as believing that drinking will be favorable to the better appreciation of music and that the old waltz and concert music will take the place of jazz dance music. The restless jazz-and-hip-flask era will pass; people will eat and drink more and dance less, spending their time sipping rare wines and liqueurs, the appropriate one with each of a long number of elaborate courses.

Well, all I can say is: Maybe I have my doubts. I am enough of an old-fashioned Yankee to know that even before prohibition the average American did not eat very much game and wild fowl nor wash down what he did eat with rare vintages. At least, not as far back as I can remember. Those tantalizing old menus that used to be on exhibition in the old Parker House lobby—I do not know where they are in the new building—did list numbers of rare and heavy viands, both roast and game, accompanied by wines. But that was a long, long time ago, back in the days when heavy eating and elaborate drinking were socially in vogue.

There is one undeniable truth about American foods and feeding. Long before prohibition the American menu was getting simpler. When I was a boy the average middle-class family was accustomed to eat meat three times a day. Steaks and chops were mere breakfast snacks. The first change came toward the end of the nineties with the introduction of cold or quickly cooked cereals. Jim Dumps, who became Sunny Jim, was the pioneer of the new era. Nowadays, the average American breakfast is very light, perhaps too light; orange juice, cereal, coffee and a bit of toast.

Increasingly our business men have been taught to eat lightly at noon. The old-fashioned business men's lunch, usually a fairly solid meal, is probably more honored today in the breach than in the observance. I doubt if the business man will drink much at noon. We have got out of the habit of the heavy, rich meal, except on occasions. Old-fashioned American food is no longer vulgar; it is even smart. Hotels have special restaurants for the plain old dishes, cooked by women instead of by men. No, I am afraid those chefs who see an era of cordons bleus returning are talking through their white caps.

Similarly the return of the waltz and of concert music is a matter of national temperament, not of liquor. Even in the old days the music at places where liquor was served was neither languorous nor classical. Some of our critics and prophets apparently expect us to turn into Frenchmen or Germans overnight. If wine does not go well with modern dancing, then it is not the waltz that will replace the new steps, it is the cocktail and the mixed drink that will displace the wine. We have had ragtime or jazz longer than we have had prohibition. Viennese waltzes are lovely musical curios for our younger generation — not something to dance to.

No, I am afraid not. I suspect that we shall go on dancing as before, and eating as before, and drinking much the same as before. The mere presence of wine on the menu is not going to turn the clock back to the days of the epicure and the gourmet. A few of the wealthy and the affected may make a great parade of reviving the grand days of the elder Mrs. Astor. But most of us will have neither the habit, the inclination, the money, the leisure, nor the patience. Especially the money. For one does not dine like one of De Maupassant's characters on the price we are willing nowadays to pay for a restaurant meal. A word to the wise restaurateur should be sufficient. Diamond Jim Brady is dead. So is Queen Anne.

Revere Hotel Man Files in Bankruptcy

Liabilities of $52,377 and assets of $30 are listed in a voluntary bankruptcy petition filed in Federal Court today by Martin J. Clougherty, hotel manager, of Boulevard, Revere.

Secured claims total $36,000, unsecured, $16,023. A claim for $10,612 in notes and stock liabilities is held by the Revere Trust Co. of Revere.

LEONIDS SWEEP BY, BUT STILL HIDE SECRETS

Observers at Harvard See 'Fair Shower' of Meteors

Mysterious Leonid meteors, expected last night to bombard little Planet Earth with a spectacular aerial fire barrage, were whirling off again through space today, for the third time in a century, with most of their secrets still locked away from astronomers of Harvard and of other great eastern U. S. universities.

Peering through telescopes at the Harvard observatory and focussing huge long-distance cameras into the star-lighted heavens until dawn today were more than half a hundred scientists and students, including delegations from the University of Toronto, Canada.

They saw what they called "a fair shower" of meteors hit earth's atmosphere, blaze into incandescence, and vanish in a train of fire.

A few Leonids, supposed to be madly speeding clouds of comet dust, were recognized among the sky projectiles which the cameras and the telescopes registered.

But the dazzling Leonid shower last glimpsed and recorded just 100 years ago was not repeated, astronomers said, although the skies, frosty, clear, were favorable for observation.

Mysteries which scientists sought to penetrate with help of the Leonids, concerned chemical composition of the space wanderers, true story of their possible origin in some long ago interstellar collision and height, density and composition of planet Earth's still unexplored stratosphere through which some day, rocket planes will speed, it is hoped.

THREE FEDERAL LOANS SETTLED

Depositors of the closed Federal National Bank will lose $6,623 by the acceptance of compromise offers by Receiver Herbert Pearson on three mortgage notes totalling $19,156.42, it was revealed in a report filed today in Federal court.

One note on which $6,240.07 is due, with interest from Oct. 1, 1933, is made out by Michael and Mary A. Finnegan as a mortgage on property at 52 Stonehurst st., Dorchester. Pearson has been authorized to compromise for $5000.

Another note for $5,421.56 secured by mortgage on real estate at 59 Blue Hill ave., Milton, is made out to Neil and Jennie MacKay. This indebtedness will be compromised by payment of $1300 and assignment of $32.99, which MacKay has to his credit at the bank.

A mortgage note signed by Nathan Fine on which $7194.79 is due, with interest from Oct. 1, 1931, secured by property at 151 and 153 Meridian st., East Boston, will be compromised for $6200. Fine died in 1931, and the time for filing claims against his estate has passed.

'Without a Country' Court Obliges

Louis Suffolk of Charlestown, appearing in Suffolk court today on a charge of intoxication, was saved by Judge Zottoli from becoming a man without a country.

"Why don't you straighten yourself out and go back to your wife and children?" court asked, recognizing the defendant as an old offender.

"They don't want me," said Suffolk. "The country don't want me and I don't want the country."

"Well," said Judge Zottoli, "you're going to get just what you don't want. I'm going to send you to the country, State Farm."

With an official minimum of 12 above, Boston experienced its second day of record cold today while the mercury dropped below zero in many sections of New England and the season's first death from cold resulted.

No relief is in sight for tonight and early tomorrow, the weatherman predicted, but late tomorrow it will start warming up and by Saturday it will have moderated considerably.

New England's first cold weather victim was an unidentified man found frozen at Cumberland, R. I.

Today became the coldest Nov. 16 by a margin of nine degrees when the thermometer on the new Federal building registered 12 degrees at 7 a. m. Twenty-one in 1889, was the coldest previous for the date.

As a matter of fact in the entire history of the Weather Bureau here there have been few November days colder than today. One has to go back to Nov. 21, 1879 for a minimum of 10 and to the following day of the same year for a minimum of nine. Yesterday with an official minimum of 1[illegible] was also a record for the date.

Northfield, Vt., reported 2 below today and sub-zero or zero records were reported in other Vermont and New Hampshire towns and in western Massachusetts.

Early winter held much of the country in its grip. Chicago had a reading of 10, St. Paul a minimum of 4; it was 16 at Albany, 22 at New York, 22 at St. Louis, 16 at Pittsburgh, 24 at Washington and 34 at Denver.

The cold wave, which arrived Tuesday, extends over much of the country, with seven deaths elsewhere and storms on the Great Lakes and Atlantic reported.

The violence of the North Atlantic storms was told by the crews of fishing vessels arriving in Boston, all "iced up" for the first time this season. The Vagabond, in from a week off Cape Cod, had part of her bow rail carried away by the seas which flooded the galley stove, causing the hold to fill with gas. With auxiliary power, [illegible] heavy weather, she made no more than 100 miles in 18 hours. The trawlers Shawmut and Flow also docked badly battered.

He Digs In, for He Knows Winters

A feature of the cold weather news was announcement that G. Harold Noyes, Boston's new weatherman, has purchased a brick and frame house at 36 Kingston rd., Newton Highlands, where he will keep warm with an oil-burning hot water system, special insulation and weatherstripping and —a fireplace installed in the cellar.

Stage Her Greatest Love

Hailed by beauty and dramatic critics as the "Ideal American Beauty" Miss Marie Stevens, now here with the Ziegfeld Follies, is just as brainy as she is beautiful. She is a graduate of Yale Teaching Hospital and the University of Louisville. (Boston American photo.)

Blonde Beauty of Follies Lured From Science

That lovely blonde you've inevitably picked out as the most beautiful show girl in the Follies—that is, if you've been fortunate enough to get into Mrs. Billie Burke Ziegfeld's swell and super-successful show at the Shubert Theater—has still another defense against the big, bad wolf. She's as brainy as she's beauteous.

There was a time, not so long ago, when she had decided to live the cloistered life of a scientist and to spend her days in the stark environs of a laboratory discovering the peculiar designs for living of varied and innumerable bacteria. That followed her award of a bachelor of science degree from Yale Teaching Hospital, where she had been taking a post-graduate course, after her graduation from the University of Louisville.

In case you haven't had the opportunity to temporarily lose your heart to [illegible] the Shubert stage and don't follow us, we're talking about Marie Stevens, whom James Montgomery Flagg has called the "Ideal American Beauty."

Now the highest-paid show girl on Broadway, the theater public might never have glimpsed her charms had it not been for a movie-tone [illegible] which she [illegible] called "just for fun between exams."

That marked a period to her [illegible] career. The great Flo Ziegfeld saw the movietone and tersely stated "I want that girl for my show."

Well, she came to Broadway, [illegible] they saw her, and she's gone her conquering way ever since. In the 1931 Follies, she played a prominent role in a cast that was bedizened with such stars as Helen Morgan, Ruth Etting and Harry Richman.

Then followed "Hot Cha" and "Music in the Air." So outstanding was her success in these stage hits, that when Miss Billie Burke decided to stage another "Follies" as a fitting tribute to her celebrated husband's memory, the erstwhile pretty bacteriological student was among the first Bobby Connolly, dance director, selected for an important role.

And, who knows what great scientific discovery has been lost to mankind because a darn good brain happened to be housed in a frame so flawlessly beautiful that the Great Glorifier insisted upon [illegible] to place "Follies" [illegible] background?

HINCKLEY BODY IS ORDERED TO BE EXHUMED

Boston Expert to Pass on the Charge That Man Was Murdered

Exhumation of the body of John J. Hinckley, Holliston odd job man, was ordered for today, to be followed by an autopsy to determine if he was slain in an insurance fraud plot.

Dist. Atty. Edmund R. [illegible] of Norfolk County issued the exhumation order after he had conferred with Asst. Dist. Atty. Charles E. Green of Essex County and Medical Examiner A[illegible] Budreski of Brockton.

Fifty-four years old and penniless, it was discovered that [illegible] worth of insurance was carried on Hinckley, whose body was originally buried in a pauper's grave in Salem as a victim of a hit and run motorist.

MAGRATH CALLED IN

The body, now resting in Cold Spring Cemetery, Whitman, will be turned over to Dr. George B. Magrath, who will ascertain if police are right in believing Hinckley was killed for the insurance on his life.

In the meantime four State detectives have been assigned to gather evidence in three counties, and an arrest waits on the result of the autopsy.

Police believe that Hinckley, while under the influence of liquor, was struck on the head with an auto jack, dropped in an East Saugus road, and his body run over by an automobile to simulate accident.

PAYMENT HALTED

The insurance company, which had written seven different policies on Hinckley's life, received a request to withhold payment pending the outcome of the investigation.

Six of the seven policies named Hinckley's estate as the beneficiary, but Jacob Shore, Holliston expressman with whom the dead man formerly lived, had obtained an assignment of the policies to him, police said. The seventh policy named a Holliston woman as beneficiary.

Shore, who said he paid the premium on the policies, identified Hinckley's body five days after burial in a pauper's grave at Salem.

LOVE TRYSTS WIN DIVORCE

Dorothy Louise Jackson today made no comment on the divorce granted at Salem to her husband, Elmer E. Jackson, of Western ave., Lynn, who accused her of infidelity. She did not contest the case.

The decree was granted by Judge Edward B. O'Brien, after he heard testimony that Jackson had noticed his wife's interest in Burrill Bowman, a 50-year-old ex-employe of his, during the course of a trial in which Bowman was a witness.

Subsequently, Jackson, who is 24 and the head of a printing firm, testified that his brother, George, and a detective several times found Bowman in his wife's apartment, making love to her. There was also testimony of overheard conversation about love trysts on Lynn Beach.

Mrs. Jackson, who has no children, was Miss D[illegible] L. [illegible] before her marriage [illegible] Depot, N. H., in April, 1[illegible]. She now [illegible]

Instinctive to Relish Bacon

By MARTHA LEE

NINETY-SEVEN per cent of bacon fat is assimilated by the human body. Growing children should be given bacon. Bacon prevents the letdown of physical and mental energy and the desire for sweets of poorly fed children, because much of its digestion is done in the stomach. Bacon also sends a steady influx of energy into the blood stream over a period of hours, to meet the demands of muscle and brain.

The trouble with most bacon, however, is that it is either cooked too little and being soft and slithery has little appetite appeal or is singed to death. We have two favorite methods of bacon cooking here in the Martha Lee School. One is to place the strips close together in a shallow aluminum baking pan and then cook it at medium temperature (400 deg. F.) pouring over the strips its fat as it accumulates. Our other, quicker method is to place the slices [illegible] together in a cold heavy aluminum frying pan and set it over low heat.

BACON OMELET

To yolk of 6 eggs add ½ tsp. salt, ⅛ tsp. pepper and 4 tablespoons milk. Whip whites till stiff and fold into yolk mixture. Fry 10 slices of bacon till brown and crisp and chop them very fine. Place 5 tablespoons bacon drippings in baking pan and when hot pour in the prepared omelet, stirring in the minced bacon lightly. If desired, grated cheese may be added. Bake in hot oven 15 minutes. Turn, fold and place on hot platter. Garnish with crisp slices of bacon.

PANDORA TELLS YOU

DEAR PANDORA:

Perhaps this doesn't come under the heading "Problem" at all. But, Pandora, despite the fact that I love my husband and he's what is known as a good provider and all my friends say my home is perfectly charming, I'm completely miserable—now that the hunting season is on. You hear about hunt widows — well I wish I were one. On the other hand, my husband insists that I accompany him on all his hunting trips and I don't like any part of it—from the [illegible] mannish clothes I needs must wear to the unpalatable (to me) deer steaks I'm supposed to wax highly enthusiastic about.

I don't know how it all started [illegible] I thought I do [illegible] I was a bride [illegible] my [illegible] broached the subject [illegible] I only [illegible] anxious to please him [illegible] [illegible] HOME GIRL.

Well [illegible] no wonder [illegible] are a [illegible] [illegible] be getting [illegible] would be thrilled to pieces if her husband found her so indispensable to his happiness that he'd even let her [illegible] on his hunting preserves! There, there, Homegirl, I'm not going to try to change your mind. If you don't want to go you [illegible] Did you ever [illegible] to [illegible] the [illegible] Homegirl, [illegible] after the long [illegible] accidentally [illegible] [illegible] cross because you miss your hot bath and hot rolls in the morning, complaining at the sameness of the menu in the way whenever your husband is about to aim (that do be careful and don't stand where X marks the spot). I'm sure if you follow instructions closely, you'd never be asked on another hunting trip. In fact, unless you're an excellent cook and otherwise gifted, I'm afraid you may not even be asked home.

Doctors say to use only liquid laxatives for youngsters; and preferably one with senna. A liquid laxative can be regulated as to dose. The natural laxative action of senna does not weaken the bowels.

Do you realize a laxative that works just right for you, can work havoc with a child?

That the laxative habit can be contracted at the age of six?

You wouldn't give your youngster a powerful headache powder! You shouldn't give him a violent cathartic.

Druggists report increasing sales of liquid laxatives. Mothers are rapidly discovering the advantage of the liquid form. Thousands of cases of ill-health—and half-health—in children are being cleared-up by stopping all use of any laxative of adult strength.

The preparation most favored for child use is California Syrup of Figs. It is a fruity syrup with the right amount of senna for gentle stimulation of a child's bowels. It gives the right kind of help.

Don't Give Your Children the Cathartic Habit!

If the bowels aren't moving regularly and thoroughly, do not give any medicine which drains the system dry. Give a liquid senna preparation like California Syrup of Figs. A little every day, and reduce the dose each day. At the end of one week—stop. You'll be surprised how long it will be before the bowels need any further help. It may be months.

Be sure you get the real California Syrup of Figs, with "California" on the label. If you get the right preparation, and use it the right way, you can absolutely end all worry over constant sluggish spells, bilious attacks, constipation.

All druggists keep California Syrup of Figs, ready for use. It is highly recommended for regulating children, and to undo the mischief done by habit-forming laxatives.

The Mode of the Moment Described by Well-Known Women

SPORTS CLOTHES that are [illegible] and [illegible] have always appealed to me.

The outfit that I am wearing in the accompanying picture is one of my favorites of all time. It is [illegible] to wear these [illegible] Santa [illegible] for [illegible]

The short coat has the squared [illegible] waist with the same material, fastened with a copper buckle.

THE DRESS is of plaid ratine. The plaid is contrived with odd-sized blocks of yellow, orange and brown, all autumn colors. The dress is straight in line and has one small pleat in the skirt for freedom in walking. The scarf is fastened at the neck with a bar-pin of copper to match the buckle on the velvet jacket.

The small turban I wear with it is of brown velvet and is unornamented. Brown suede shoes and gloves of brown or smart champagne suede complete the outfit.

Maple Sets for Informal Rooms

By Annice Brink

LITTLE DID the old New England cobbler, pegging away at crude leather soles, think that some day his very utilitarian bench with compartments built in on the left side, would be reproduced even to its worn edges, and grace the modern living room as a refreshment or coffee stand.

Nor did the well-known village blacksmith dream that his hardy wooden case with a carrying handle, where he kept a miscellany of nails and waxes, in faithful replica would hold magazines and oddments.

Modern maple copies of these old pieces, and especially the tavern tables, are especially interesting in informal rooms.

The tavern tables suggest an old custom which might be a clever variation of Sunday night buffet suppers or snacks in the game room. In the old tavern and taprooms, when the traveler was served food or drink it was brought to him wherever he chanced to sit by the simple method of placing one of these easily moved tables before him. Why not do it today? It will save a bit of fancy tray or tea cup juggling, not to speak of saving the finish on the piano or the radio.

Sometime When You're in the Mood Tie Up Your Hair and Decide on Your Type

By Therese Deschamps

DID WE stir up a tempest in a tea pot when we printed our little sketches on what to do with rouge to change the contours of the face. Now we have decided that every woman has a face she would like to change for a better one—or no face at all—she is just that discouraged with her own.

It really doesn't pay to dislike one's face. It is easier to accept it as it is in the natural version and then gently glorify it. If you don't like your mouth, concentrate on your eyes and make them so completely alluring no one pays any attention to the lower face excepting the dentist.

Or, if your mouth is your best feature, bring that into prominence. Believe the Hollywood stars, this business of making a cold study of your features—pays.

Daintily Feminine

Some morning when you are in a pleasant frame of mind, uncover your cream jars, tie your hair up in a towel and decide on your type. If you choose to be daintily feminine, work toward those lines. Blend your rouge carefully while your powder base is still moist enough to take it without smearing. Next, adjust the eye shadow.

At this stage of the game you should look a little half-baked. Press the powder on your face with a puff, but do not scrub it in. Brush it into place with light fingertips or one of those cute little complexion brushes that are becoming so popular.

If you have any trouble keeping your lips like rose petals (nice thought) try a liquid lip rouge for a change. It takes a steady hand to apply it, but some of our cleverest women wouldn't use anything else.

Pastels Best

There really isn't anything frightening about makeup if it is used with a practiced hand. Of course, if you get more fun out of being exotic and your family doesn't object—do have fun, but remember pastels are often easier to live with day in and day out than are vivid oils of the South Sea Island variety.

There are several beauty "schools" being conducted in Boston this week if you need any of the fine points on how to be dazzling or demure, or, if you will send your beauty problems to us, we will do everything we can to assist you. Will you please enclose a self-addressed, stamped envelope with your inquiry?

Beauty Questions and Answers

Thoroughly Dyed

Question: What a confession I have to make to you. Several years ago, I had my hair bleached and since that time I have tried everything and every color. Now it is very dry and seems coarse. What shall I do with it?—Mrs. D. F. G., Boston.

Answer: If I were you, I would have my hair clipped as closely as possible and start a nice new crop. Any time I had any ambition to change the color of my hair, I would buy a dress instead.

Sunshine

Question: I have gone South every winter and never had any ill effects from a fairly thorough sunburn. Now, I understand, it is supposed to be bad for one, this "sitting in the sun." Mrs. H. K. L., Boston.

Answer: Yes, I also understand that this sitting in the sun ages the skin. I think I would enjoy my South just the samey, even if I had to take a nice beach umbrella along.

The Marry-Go-Round

The Glamorous Days

By HELEN ROWLAND

EVERYBODY IS wondering if the glamour and gayety of the old pre-war days will return with the advent of repeal and the Mae West figure.

Helen Rowland

There was an old refrain in those days which ran something like this:

The people of Broadway never go home!
They know neither sun nor moon.
For two A. M. is the same to them
As two in the afternoon!

That sounds pretty tame to the debutante, who has just beat the milkman to the door. Two A. M. is now "the shank of the evening."

But there WAS A COLOR and a charm about life before prohibition corked the spirits, and denatured alcohol ruined the digestion—and about New York life in particular.

Every popular restaurant in the Big Town had a PERSONALITY—an individuality and an atmosphere all its own. So different from the monotonous jazziness of the present-day night clubs.

I was only a cub "newspaper soubrette," and the boy friends were all young reporters, so I can't remember much about the glittering and regal women or the ambrosial cooking at Delmonico's or Martin's.

But there were other haunts quite as colorful and more amusing. There was the old Cafe Boulevard on Second ave., with its haunting Hungarian orchestra, whose enchanting tunes got into your head and kept you humming to yourself all next day.

Pound of Fat a Day

1 JANE TAKES A SUGGESTION

THE JAD METHOD IS MARVELOUS—BEGIN IT NOW—AND CONDENSED JAD SALTS COST ONLY 2¢ A DAY!

Take teaspoonful New Condensed JAD Salts every morning and follow simple suggestions about eating.

2 JANE A FEW WEEKS LATER

—YOU'RE SO GRACEFUL AND SLENDER— —SO VITAL! I'M PROUD OF YOU, JANE!

Unsightly fat melts away—the charm only the slender person has returns.

Ripped Off Easy New Way

For 14¢ a Week!

MODERN science now makes the fat person's dream of bliss come true. You eat your fill and yet grow thin!

Lose as much as seven full pounds a week. And from the very first day, look pounds lighter than you really are! All this at a cost of 2¢ a day!

All You Do

It's amazingly easy. You just do two simple things. Take a teaspoonful of the new Condensed JAD Salts in a glass of water before breakfast. Make two small changes in diet—as explained in the folder inside the JAD package you get. That's all.

Your first glass of Condensed JAD Salts often rips off as much as three pounds of weight—the body's moisture weight—in 24 hours. You look pounds lighter in an hour—for it almost instantly banishes all puffiness and bloat from the face. And the system is quickly cleared of toxins and depleting poisons.

Grow Thin on a Full Stomach!

You literally never need know a hungry moment! By the JAD method, you can eat even more than you do now!

And if normally overweight, you can lose 4 to 7 pounds a week this way; never be hungry and feel better than you have for years. The Condensed JAD Salts keeps you fit and active. The dietary change rips off the fat swiftly. The grace and personal charm only a slender person has, returns to you.

Month's Supply New Condensed Jad Salts only 60¢!

Just ask for the new Condensed JAD Salts at any drug store. JAD in this new powdered form is amazingly economical. A month's supply is only 60¢—you can actually follow this scientific plan for 14¢ a week! Don't forget: Condensed JAD Salts.

And begin the JAD Method of reducing—tomorrow. The Jad Salts—remember—is urged as a poison-banishing agent . . . to banish unhealthy bloating and to eliminate body moisture—not as a reducing one.

THE OPENING OF THE CLUB 43 on the site of the old Arabian Nights, at Stanhope st., No. 43, in the Copley sq. district, will bring out a smart membership on Saturday night, we hear . . .

Why? Because Gardiner Cox and Nat Saltonstall have been the architects for this new venture and we can tell you it strikes a new stride in decoration . . . because William Erskine is organizer of the idea (a swell place where one can go dressed or undressed - that refers to evening clothes) and the membership will be selected and limited to two-fifty . . . because Jack Marchard and his rhythm boys will strike you pink or give you liberty or give you love . . . because Mr. Foster (the debs and smoothies have been devouring Foster's for too many seasons than we care to remember) will cater to the epicurean taste of the clientele and Mary Campbell has provided a Powder Bar for the Fair Things which will make Joan Crawford's Hollywood dressing room green with envy . . . that's all we have been able to find out about it . . . we will tell you more later.

ELSIE PERKINS

The Ritz-Hickson fashion parade was very well attended by the well-dressed this week . . . we noticed many new faces and new costumes . . . the beautiful Elsie Perkins, who has recently returned from abroad, wore a blackberry woolen dress trimmed with seal which was very smart. She was lunching with Lucille Swift, who was among the minks . . .

Kitty Talbot in Chartreuse Green

KATHERINE THAYER IN A BROWN WOOL with pink satin collar and brown sailor, and Kitty Talbot in a lovely chartreuse green costume strolled over to their table for a chat during the parade of magnificent winter furs which were displayed on a group of this season's debutantes . . . Susan Means looked very well indeed in an ermine evening wrap with top of mink and Peggy Blake was very cunning in ermine coatee and tiny muff . . .

Astrid Rice, Muriel Rice and others walked around the tables to the sweet strains of the orchestra and the pleasant tinkle of crystal and silver . . .

Mrs. McGregor from Brockton, with her attractive daughter, were glimpsed lunching with the songbird, Willie Morris . . . Mrs. McGregor and Miss McGregor are among our best dressed wherever they are seen . . .

Mrs. Moseley Taylor smiled her way around the dining room to greet a party and Mrs. Wadsworth Busk had her usual table for five . . . a jolly group.

Dinner for Eligibles Only

Mrs. Walter Byron drove in from Weston to see her two daughters, Sally and Betsy, model in the swagger furs for football games . . . and Mrs. John Kiley and her debutante daughter sat on the ringside to view the latest styles . . . as did Mrs. Harold Cutler, Mrs. Edwin Childs, Mrs. W. Emerson Barrett, Mrs. Homer Albers and hundreds of other Tuesday luncheon-ers. . . .

We hear that Mrs. S. Huntington Wolcott is giving a dinner soon for Virginia Tudor, a debutante, and only ELIGIBLES are to be invited . . . that will be indeed a hand-picked party. What constitutes eligibility today might be the subject for another debate!

Designing Scenery

DEBORAH HALL WAS A glamorous model yesterday afternoon at the Florence Crittenden Fashion Fete contributed by Jordan's . . . she wore a pansy colored crepe with flowing gold lame sleeves and while the gown was over the heads of the male members present, Miss Hall was not. She was very much admired . . . We glimpsed her later seated on the stairs in a grey and navy striped wool and she confided that she is busy every morning at the Junior League designing scenery for the Players productions.

Mrs. Hugh Bancroft, Jr

The youthful Mrs. Hugh Bancroft was seen in a midnight blue woolen trimmed with mink tails . . .

Alice Burrage, deb, wore a slinky mink over her brown woolen dress. . . if debs wear sables at eighteen, will they go nudist at twenty-eight for contrast?

Caroline Oveson made a lovely bride in ivory velvet . . . she was found later chatting in the lobby wearing a raccoon coat. . . we approve

Bright and cheery as always, Mrs. Eliot Spalding was a wonderful saleslady at the flower and apple table, . . we say wonderful and mean it because we saw her selling single blossoms for 10 cents each . . .

Mrs. Ralph Beatty and Mrs. Gilbert Horde poured tea.

THAT GIRL FROM NEW YORK -:- By Allene Corliss -:-

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

Lovely young Eden Lane and handsome Jerry Evan, a banker, fall in love on sight. Five years before, following a disastrous love experience Eden had come to New York. She obtained a position with an advertising concern and that, together with the income from her mother's estate, permitted her to live comfortably. After two years in New York she met Jake Pierson, an undemonstrative sort who aroused ardor by his lack of it. He proposed to Eden, but, while she enjoyed his companionship thoroughly, she did not love him. Following Eden's rejection Jake disappeared. When next she saw him he was married, but his wife had gone to Arizona for her health. Jerry and Eden are finally married in New York and spend a four day [illegible] at Atlantic City. [illegible] Jerry [illegible] hometown [illegible] marriage. In New York [illegible] Eden and Jerry on a party where Jerry meets Lola. Jerry and Lola disappear at the party and Jake has to take Eden home. The next day Jerry loses his job and they [illegible] Jerry [illegible] Vermont to live with his mother.

NOW CONTINUE THE STORY

She had known her [illegible] couldn't stick [illegible] she could [illegible] come [illegible] threa[illegible] [illegible] find the real prices and for them together [illegible] to make the [illegible] proper [illegible] It was [illegible] dens [illegible] mother had—how much Jerry, himself, would some day have. It seemed strange to think of Jerry as ever having [illegible] some day he would have [illegible]

She supposed in a way that explained a lot of things. It probably explained why Jerry took things so lightly. He didn't have to be serious about life, he didn't have to fight and struggle and worry to get ahead. It was all arranged for him [illegible] puzzle [illegible] didn't have to scramble around and [illegible] to enter another, a much more definite and permanent one.

"Hello, there—all set?" Jerry shoved a travelling bag out of the way and sat down opposite her. He looked distinguished, healthy and well scrubbed.

Eden told him so a little grudgingly. She added that it was not decent of him to look so much better than she felt.

[illegible]ve Works [illegible]h Looks

"Just a good clean [illegible], darling," he assured her, leaning forward to peer out of her window. "We're nearly in—look, Eden, you get a fairly good view of the town from right here." He found her hand and squeezed it suddenly. "Do you know, I'm getting sort of a kick out of coming back. I feel as if I were seeing the old town for the first time—as if I really belonged to it."

"Marvelous, Jerry!" Eden tipped her head back and surveyed him solemnly. "It's sentiments like those that have made Rotary what it is today."

"Unfeeling brat—trust you to remind me that I'm a hard-boiled New Yorker."

"But I'm not at all sure that you are, Jerry," she protested quickly. "I shouldn't be at all surprised to find you're——"

"Just a small-town boy?" prompted Jerry, grinning at her derisively. "Well, perhaps I am—which sort of leaves you holding the bag, doesn't it? I mean, it would be sort of a mean trick on you—"

"Idiot! Shut up and let me hang onto you a minute. I'm scared to death!"

"For heaven's sake—what of?"

"Your mother—and your town," she told him honestly. "I'd like to crawl into your pocket and stay there. I hate these forced personal contacts—it makes everything so awfully complicated—supposing they don't like me—"

"What you really mean, darling," he corrected her promptly, "is 'supposing I don't like them'—but you will. Mother's not half bad when you get used to her—and the town's all right—you'll like being Mrs. Jerry Evans in Jefferson. You see, it happens to mean something—"

"Does it?"

"Now you're being funny again," he accused her, laughing a bit reluctantly, "but you wait and see—"

"I suppose," she ventured tentatively, "it also means something to be Mister Jerry Evans—"

"Well, naturally. That is—oh, well, what difference does it make, anyhow?" He bent to her swiftly, his eyes laughing at her softly, telling her things, promising her things—telling her he loved her, promising never to stop.

Large Estates Crown Prospect Street Hill

Eden closed her own eyes swiftly, and when she opened them again they were running slowly through a railroad yard, between double rows of freight cars.

The car which carried them from the station to the house on Prospect st. was a Cadillac sedan, five years old, beautifully rubbed and polished. Williams sat at the wheel. Jerry's rather battered bags and Eden's brown leather ones, piled on the seat beside him. Mrs. Evans had not met them at the train; Eden had known a moment of sharp relief when she had discovered that only Williams, a shy, [illegible] little man in a blue serge [illegible] was there to greet them.

[illegible] they had turned out of Main street and started to climb Prospect. Eden noticed that at first the houses were small and crowded close together in small lawns, with little vegetable gardens at the rear. But as they climbed higher [illegible] grew larger, [illegible] farther from the street and sought protection behind cupped hedges and clumps of shrubbery. Some of them were charming, square red-brick houses with small-paned windows, their doors wide, white and inviting, beneath beautiful old fanlights. Eden hoped suddenly that Julia Evans' would be one of these; knew a swift and plunging disappointment when William turned in abruptly at a graveled driveway, [illegible] a half-moon of barberry bushes and drew up in front of a high, chocolate-colored house. It had a tower and plate [illegible] windows. Two [illegible] lions guarded the slate-colored steps. It had an imposing, darkly varnished front door set with squares of stained glass. It looked well-painted and bleakly pretentious and quite ugly.

Afterwards, Eden always felt that the first thing Julia Evans saw when she came to meet them in that high, gloomy hall were Jake's gardenias pinned, a bit wearily now, to her silver fox. She came forward with her brisk, firm step and touched Eden's cheek with cool, remote lips and received Jerry's embrace. But all the time, Eden felt that all she really was aware of were those drooping flowers. She wanted to say:

"You're quite wrong—Jerry didn't buy them. An old and very special beau sent them to me—a person you wouldn't approve of at all!"

She didn't, of course. In the months that were to follow, Eden rarely said any of the things she thought. She became quite adept at thinking one thing and saying another. She paid for it, of course—with precious metal. It cost her spontaneity, [illegible] much of her charm and a [illegible] of her [illegible]. In time, of course, she was to learn that it was costing her too much; that it was costing her that most priceless thing of all, her happiness. But that was to come later.

[illegible] was served to [illegible] almost immediately. They ate at an immense oak table in a cold and rather dark dining room. A drop light shaded with a white china globe, threw a little pool of light over the table. Martha, gaunt and close-mouthed, in a print dress and large, white apron, served them silently. She smiled at Jerry and seemed pleased to see him in her repressed, inarticulate way. For Eden she had only a polite and unsmiling nod. She was neither friendly nor antagonistic, merely [illegible].

The food was good. There was coffee in a huge silver coffee urn, [illegible] muffins covered with a [illegible] napkin, orange marmalade, crisp strips of home-cured bacon. Chilled grapes in an old glass fruit dish.

"Company dishes!" observed Jerry, lifting his flowered Haviland coffee cup. "We are an occasion, Eden!"

His mother looked at him, raised her eyebrows almost imperceptibly. "I believe the Haviland was entirely Martha's idea."

"That seems rather sweet of her—it must have made her extra trouble—" Eden looked up and smiled swiftly at the thin, stoop-shouldered woman who was just coming in with muffins.

"It did." Julia spoke calmly, taking a hot muffin, breaking it, buttering it carefully.

"But you're not the sort to mind a little extra work, are you, Martha? Not when you know it's going to please me—"

Lead Poisoning Is Now Rare Disease

Dr. Copeland

NOT SO long ago lead poisoning was a common and often fatal disease. Little was known about the disease and frequently it was confused with some other ailment. I am glad to say that the disease is now rarely encountered. This is [illegible] measures enforced in all [illegible] where lead is used.

When the disease occurs it is usually traced to carelessness on the part of the victim. Failure to observe the necessary precautions in the handling of lead products often results in cases of poisoning. Fortunately the disease is now easily recognized and when proper measures are taken immediately, relief and complete cure are possible.

"Plumbism," or poisoning by lead, occurs when excessive amounts of lead are absorbed by the body. This may follow the drinking of water contaminated by lead, or the absorption of lead through the skin by contact with the metal. It may follow exposure to lead particles and the [illegible] inhalations of lead [illegible].

Face powders, cosmetics and certain dyes may result in lead poisoning if they contain an excess amount of this metal.

The symptoms of lead poisoning are varied. As a rule, the sufferer complains of colic, constipation, loss of strength and vitality. The gums become discolored and may show a black streak. The teeth are sensitive and feel loose. There is an excessive amount of saliva in the mouth.

In more advanced cases the victim suffers from vague rheumatic pains and has abnormal mental states. Paralysis may occur. This is usually seen in the muscles of the forearms. It produces a weakness of the muscles and an inability to hold the wrists up. So-called "wrist drop" [illegible] lead [illegible]

We are indeed indebted to those scientists who have made [illegible] a rare and unusual disease. It is a preventable disease and with proper measures of protecting against it, should be entirely eradicated.

PATTERN 9813

Happy Ending to Contract Due to Misunderstood Bid

There are many misunderstandings at the Bridge table which arise because one player or the other does not like his partner's bids or plays. Sometimes the arguments in these cases wax exceedingly warm, but now and then they do have a happy ending, as occurred on the hand below:

North, Dealer.
Both sides vulnerable.

North:
♠ Q 10 8 5 4
[illegible]
[illegible]
[illegible]

West:
♠ [illegible] 6
♡ [illegible] 9 8 5 4 3
♢ K Q
♣ A 5

East:
♡ A J 6 2
♢ 8 6 5 3 2

South:
♠ K J 9 3 2
♡ Q 7
♢ A 7 4
♣ Q 7 6

The bidding:

North	East	South	West
Pass	Pass	3 ♠ (1)	4 ♡ (2)
4 ♠ (3)	Pass (4)	Pass	Pass

(1) The explanation of this bid is that South thought North had bid one spade; with 2½ honor-tricks and five of his partner's trumps [illegible] the [illegible] three [illegible] demand [illegible].

(2) When West [illegible] hearts [illegible] tops and he might be stepping into a considerable penalty the bid of four hearts here cannot be condemned.

(3) Of course North knows that he has not bid one spade and hence the Raise to four is automatic. In fact, North afterwards explained that he considered for a moment bidding five hearts as there appeared to him to be a remote chance for a slam in the hand.

(4) It [illegible] appears as though East might [illegible] bid. If [illegible] vulnerable partner [illegible] bid four hearts over an Opening bid of three spades then with four hearts to the Ace-Knave and a Singleton in the adverse [illegible] East can safely continue the bidding.

In the play South made exactly four spades after his partner had explained to him that he had not bid one spade but had simply raised his Opening bid of three to four. East and West, it will be noted, could easily have made five hearts losing a diamond and a club.

Today's Question

North and South vulnerable. The bidding:

North	South
1 [illegible]	3 ♣
3 [illegible]	[illegible]

You, North hold:
♠ 5 ♡ K 9 4 2 ♢ A K 6 ♣ A Q [illegible] 9 4

What do you bid?

Answer: Four notrump. This call should need no explanation. The North hand contains two Aces and the King of a bid suit and in addition several other plus values not as yet disclosed. There is no better way for North to give a Slam try. If South holds the other two Aces and also holds the King of clubs, he will know that your four-no-trump bid is predicated upon two Aces and the King of hearts, and seven will then be reached quite easily. At any rate, there is no better bid that North can make which will first force his partner, second, paint a picture of his hand and third, locate the key card.

PIE whenever you want it—

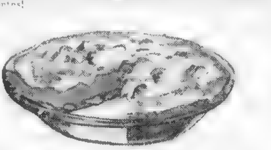
if the pie-crust is made with Crisco, the quick-digesting shortening

Pie? Say, dear, why do you tempt me?
Don't worry, dear. This pie crust will agree with you. I made it with Crisco, the fat that digests quickly.

Pie whenever you want it? Sure, IF the pie-crust is made [illegible] Crisco pie-crust doesn't work the stomach overtime—Crisco is a pure, creamy [illegible] shortening that digests quickly.

Many folks who've had to watch their diets have written letters telling us what a change Crisco has made in their lives. They're eating pie like regular healthy people now that the shortening used for pie-crust is Crisco!

Turn out a lovely, flaky pie tonight—made by a tested Crisco recipe such as the dainty "Affinity Pie" recipe given below. No other shortening will do [illegible] Crisco is made from pure, wholesome oils by Crisco's own process. That's [illegible] [illegible] cream. That's why it keeps sweet-tasting and quick-digesting for weeks and months!



AFFINITY PIE

2 tablespoons flour
2 tablespoons cornstarch
¼ teaspoon salt
2 egg yolks, beaten
2 cups scalded milk
grated rind ½ lemon
2 bananas, sliced

Mix sugar, flour, cornstarch, and salt thoroughly. Add egg yolks and milk. Cook and stir over low heat (or in double boiler) until very thick and smooth. Add lemon rind. Remove from heat. [illegible] Use baked shell of Digestible Crisco Pastry (see Master Recipe [illegible]). Cover bottom with sliced bananas. Pour in cream filling. Cover top with—

Lemon Meringue: Beat 2 egg whites stiff. Add 4 tablespoons sugar and ½ teaspoon lemon juice. Place pie in slow oven (325°F). Bake until meringue is golden brown.

CRISCO PIE-CRUST
(makes one 2-crust or 2 single-crust pies)
2 cups flour
1 teaspoon salt
⅔ cup Crisco
6 to 8 tablespoons cold water

Sift flour and salt. Then cut in Crisco (the creamy, fluffy shortening that's wholesome). Cut in Crisco coarsely if you like a flaky crust—cut in Crisco finely if you like a mealy crust. Add only enough water to hold mixture together. Roll ⅛ inch thick on lightly floured board.

For baked shell, cover an inverted pie-plate very closely. Trim dough so you can fold it double at edge. Crimp edge. Prick bottom and sides well. Bake in hot oven (450°F.) 15 minutes.

For two-crust pie, brush lower crust with melted Crisco to prevent filling from soaking in. Bake in hot oven (450°F.) for 10 minutes—reduce to moderate (350°F.). Bake until filling is done.

Mrs. Frances Northcross, well-known cooking expert who conducted the recent Cooking School sponsored by the American, uses and recommends CRISCO, the modern, quick-digesting shortening.

Why Does N. H. L. Pass Up Ace 'Ty' Anderson?

By BILL GRIMES

Come on [illegible] fans and get your [illegible] mental attitude for the "fastest game on earth."

Figure this [illegible] get the answer [illegible] on it for I have [illegible] to fathom it out for a year.

Why has the National Hockey League passed up Ty Anderson, the Lynn boy who is playing for the Atlantic City Sea Gulls?

[illegible] Anderson never played [illegible] He was [illegible] come up from Lynn and [illegible] the Boston Hockey Club [illegible] ported and started to play with a pair of rocker skates that he [illegible] have brought with him from Norway, where he was born. [illegible] soon as he had been [illegible] with modern skating equipment Anderson began to attract attention.

Anderson had no trouble catching on with the B. H. C. and when Ralph Winsor, coach of the United States Olympic team, started looking around for talent he invited Anderson to try out for his squad. Under Winsor Ty received his first hockey instructions. He was selected as a regular defense man to represent the U. S. at Lake Placid and was the only non-college man on the squad.

MAKES GOOD WITH GULLS

After the Olympics Anderson joined the Sea Gulls. [illegible] fanfare he wrote [illegible] McKenzie for a try [illegible] did not even mention the fact [illegible] he has been a member of the U. S. Olympic team. McKenzie [illegible] brought the best [illegible] from Canada [illegible] clubs in Montreal and Toronto [illegible] Ty caught on with the Sea Gulls.

Ty Anderson was [illegible] on the Sea Gulls and [illegible] was elected as [illegible] in the amateur ranks.

The Sea Gulls played many games in Madison Square [illegible] New York and numerous N. H. L. magnates saw Ty Anderson [illegible] But he has never received an offer to turn professional.

Now, I ask you, just what does a player have to do to get a chance with some professional team? Are the bars up? Can't the all-knowing ones recognize a player of promise? Here is an American who made the Olympic team and featured at Lake Placid during the world's amateur championship series. He was chosen as the best amateur in the state. And, even more important he emerged from the Olympics with Ralph Winsor's stamp of approval, which carries plenty of prestige, at least in this country.

BENNY MURRAY TEAMS EQUAL LAYOUT

"We've been hoping for much from this team," said Coach Benny Murray, this morning. "All our first team, with one exception, are seniors. They've been coming along for two seasons, and if they don't become over confident, may go through unbeaten. There are only five real veterans on the team. Plenty of developing of the other six had to be done this year. CLAIM DIETZ PEEKED

Ever since they suffered their first and only defeat of the season, and a whitewashing in the bargain, at the hands of the Redskins a few weeks back, the pro champions have been claiming that Coach Dietz peeked in at their pre-game practice sessions at the Fens.

Dietz was around the park one day while the Windy City gridsters were working out, but he didn't violate the rule that no rival players or coach should sneak a glance at such drills. The Boston mentor was in conference with Eddie Collins all the time the Bears were on the field.

LIMIT GREEN TO SIGNAL DRILL

Hanover, N. H., Nov. 16 (AP)—The Dartmouth Indians shivered through an hour's drill on a stiffly frozen practice field today in their semi-final preparations for the biennial invasion of Cornell on Saturday. The game will be the Big Green's final home gesture of the season and the 17th meeting with the Ithacans.

The turf was much too hard for contact work and head coach Jack Cannell limited the session to a signal drill, which stressed individual assignments. Later the squad viewed the movies of last week's Princeton game.

George Stangle, "iron-man" quarterback who played every minute against Harvard, Yale and the Tigers, alternated with Norman Rand during the drill. The rest of the first-string lineup was the same as started against Princeton.

Sammy Fishman, brittle signal-caller whose ankle injury forced him to yield the varsity position to Stangle early in the season, banged it again during yesterday's workout and will probably be unavailable against Cornell.

SONNY BLAMES GEORGE FOR TROUBLES

By JACK CONWAY

Wrestling, unlike boxing, has few bitter, personal feuds. I do not believe that even Jim Browning and Jim Londos, top men in rival mat wheels, would exchange blows if they were to meet by chance in a dark alley. Wrestlers argue that there are not any pay offs to such affairs.

The outstanding feud among mat men exists between Gus Sonnenberg and Ed Don George. There is as much love between this pair as exists between a Russian and a Jap.

It is a strange condition in view of the fact Gus and Don both have college backgrounds. Each battled for dear old Mater and what not. Sonny at Dartmouth and the University of Detroit; George at Michigan.

Sonny entered the professional wrestling game before George but the latter was busy at the time winning A. A. U. and Olympic mat titles.

"I would rather lick George than any other wrestler," Sonny confessed to me as he finished training for his bout with Casey Kazanjian at the Boston Garden tomorrow night.

"Why?" I asked.

"Isn't he the champion?" queried Sonnenberg bitterly.

He didn't tell all the story. Folks don't when they have a score with somebody they secretly yearn to even.

THE MARITAL ANGLE

In the case of Sonnenberg, the story is built around the beautiful Mrs. Sonnenberg, now known to thousands of movie fans as Judith Allen. Gus' marital affairs have crashed, but that may be just another reason he has for hating George and wishing to give him a licking on the mat some night.

Three years ago Sonny was filled with romance. He had met his dream girl, and was planning to get married. He was heavyweight champion of the world, and every place he went crowds greeted him wildly.

Gus pretended he didn't care for this hero worship, but he did. Everybody likes to be popular. Even a wrestler.

He planned an early wedding. Then he was matched to meet Ed Don George on the Coast.

"I'll beat George and then return East to get married," Gus told friends as he boarded the Twentieth Century Limited for Chicago.

When Gus returned East it was as former heavyweight wrestling champion. George had beaten him. Gus's pride was hurt.

DESIRES REVENGE

Gus' defeat was also a surprise and a shock to his fiancee.

Since then Gus has desired revenge. He now believes he is on his way to his big oportunity. If he can lick Casey Kazanjian, and then bump off another first-class grappler he will have George in a corner. The latter will have to meet him. And when that day comes, says the old Dynamiter, he will blast George right back to the Michigan campus.

Sox-Athletics Deal, When and if, Would Pay Dividends | Yawkey's Money Can Put Mackmen in Black Again

By JOE CASHMAN

Should Eddie Collins be fortunate enough to talk Connie Mack out of Rube Walberg and Max Bishop for Man Mountain Kline and Pee Wee Warstler, have you given a thought to these results?

A few, in order of their importance:

1—The Sox would have the finest southpaw hurling corps in the majors with Walberg, Weiland and Ostermuller.

2—The tentative quartet of Morgan at first, Bishop at second, Walters at third and Cissell at short would shape up as the strongest Fenway infield since the days of Bill Carrigan's championship teams.

3—The money which would accompany Kline and Warstler to Philadelphia would put the Athletics on the right side of the ledger, unless old Connie has exhausted the world's red ink supply.

4—The Sox would lose its largest, smallest and, in point of service, oldest players.

5—A wager that the Fenway flock would finish in the '34 money would be the safest of sport gambles.

What with Eddie Collins down in Galveston, Tex., attending the minor league meeting, and Tom Yawkey hunting game somewhere in Mrs. Peabody's beloved Carolines, there's nobody up on Jersey st. who admits knowing that there are two A's named Walberg and Earnshaw. No satisfaction there.

Down in Philly, Mr. Mack has heard tell of the two lads. He's even heard of Warstler and Kline. But what he's heard of them, he's keeping to himself.

The fact that the tall tactician doesn't stoutly deny that he contemplates such a transaction ought to mean that he is seriously considering it. When your average baseball magnate doesn't say no, you are supposed to know he means yes.

Yet, it all seems too good to be true.

Collins and Yawkey have pulled off many advantageous deals since taking over the Sox, but this one, if they could put it over, would be the prize of the lot.

They would obtain an ace portside flinger and a smart, brilliant infielder for a relief flinger and a spare shortstop.

Kline, a 240-pound giant, is the heftiest youth in the circuit; Warstler the shortest and one of the lightest performers in the loop. Each joined the Sox in 1930.

If they go, there'll not be a player on the Fenway roster who has been around these parts more than two full seasons. Weiland opened the '32 campaign with the club. The rest all arrived later. They must buy good brooms at the Fens.

Walberg and Bishop have been important, smooth-working cogs in the Mackian machine that has won two world championships, three pennants, and hasn't finished out of the first division in the past six years.

"Lefty" Rube has only one weakness. He must be given no cause to worry. Tell him the night before that he is to pitch an important game on the morrow and you may as well count that game lost. Inform him about a few minutes before game time and get ready for a mound classic. He's not an exception in this respect. Many great pitchers have the same fault, if such it can be termed.

Bishop has been always more or less underrated. He's extremely shy and retiring, lacks color, and engineers phenomenal plays so easily and stylishly that his greatness is often overlooked.

His batting average, too, is often misleading. He never finishes among the leading hitters. But when he doesn't lead in drawing bases on balls there's something the matter with the umpire's eyes. He's the ideal lead-off man.

We remember a critic, who couldn't see Max through a microscope, asking Bob Quinn why the Quaker was rated so highly by the magnate.

"Why last season he hit only .215," was his argument.

"That's so," agreed Bob, "but let's see how many times he went to bat, how many hits he made and how many passes he received."

When all the columns had been tallied it was discovered that Bishop had the highest average in either league for reaching first base.

They tell a funny story of Bishop's debut as a Mackerel.

Coming up from Baltimore he was thrown right into the lineup, and the tenth inning of his maiden game found the decision resting squarely on his bat. He struck out swinging at a very bad ball with the tieing run on third and the winning counter on second.

Whereupon, with his hickory in his hand, he started running, but not toward the clubhouse. He galloped in the opposite direction and through a gate into the street.

"Maybe back to Baltimore," suggested a veteran.

Now Bishop and Walberg are alleged to be headed for Boston, with old Connie's blessings.

If they are, it will have to be granted that a fat bankroll can perform any miracle in baseball.

BUANNANO IN RELIEF ROLE

Brown and Harvard will renew [illegible] at the Har[illegible] Saturday [illegible] the Bruins [illegible] to Cambridge to play the [illegible] which was [illegible] in 1893. Of the 35 games played Brown has won seven, Harvard 27 and one has been tied.

Brown has had its greatest success against Harvard under the regime of Tuss McLaughry. For that matter Brown has done exceptionally well against all the former 'Big Three' [illegible] in recent years. [illegible] charges have defeated Harvard two out of three times, Princeton three out of [illegible] and Yale two out of four.

Providence folks look for another Brown victory over the Crimson Saturday. The team which was seemingly hopeless against Princeton came back to whip a good Syracuse team, 10—7, and is looking forward to its meeting with Harvard with zest.

McLaughry plans to start his strongest possible combination against the Crimson, and, despite [illegible] he expects Harvard to do [illegible] Tuss has been shifting his men about this week in practice with the result that the following team is likely to start: Chapin and Ca[illegible] ends; Olsen and L. Brown, tackles; Capasso and Patton, guards; Emery, center; Walker, quarterback; Lear and Allen, halfbacks, and Karaban, fullback.

Harvard is expected to counter with Cheek and Nazro, ends; Francisco and Kopans, tackles; Schumann and Gundlach, guards; Casey, center; Haley, quarter; Wells and [illegible] halfbacks, Janien, fullback.

Thus neither team plans to start its captain. Capt. Dean of Harvard may not be available, and Capt. Joe Buannano will be held back for "spot" purposes.

While Harvard was holding its mid-week drill in Briggs cage, Brown also spent most of the afternoon inside.

DAILY ROUNDUP

Arnold Herber, flashy little quarterback who'll display his wares before Boston fans when the Green Bay Packers tackle the Redskins at Fenway Park next Sunday, is the most successful forward passer in the pro league, according to last-minute statistics.

The former St. Regis star has completed 34 passes in 80 attempts for a gain of 432 yards. Cliff Battles, backfield ace of the Dietzmen, while attempting to stop Herber's passes on the coming Sabbath, will also be trying to add to his advantage as the leading ground gainer in the league. Cliff has gained 649 yards to date, or 217 more than his teammate, Jim Musick, who is in second place.

School Notes

Capt. Walter Bracken, Hyde Park left halfback, again was the standout performer as his unbeaten team topped East Boston, 13-6, in the schools' 23rd annual game to take the District crown. Bracken recovered a fumble by East Boston in the first period and helped largely in a march to the E. B. 35-yard line. Then MacInnis threw a pass which Bracken snatched to run for the touchdown.

In the second period Bracken made his third pass interception of the day and fled 25 yards for the touchdown. MacInnis place kicked the point. East Boston scored in the third stanza when fullback Corsetti bucked over for the touchdown.

Bodyline Bowling New Cricket Wrinkle

Melbourne, Australia, Nov. 16 (AP)—The question of "bodyline bowling" continued to hinder resumption of amicable relations between the ruling cricket bodies of England and Australia today as discussion of plans for a test match series in England next summer continued.

With football a thing of the past, Coach Al McCoy of Northeastern has already started work with his varsity basketball squad. The playing season opens on Dec. 9 when the Huskies and Brown meet at Providence.

In preparation for the season's opening, Capt. Stan Kramer of Port Washington, L. I., has been putting the many candidates through preliminary drills for a month or more.

Among the candidates who are to report immediately are Gay Milbrandt, regular center last year, and Stewart Mayberry, both football players.

EAGLES' STADIUM ENLARGED ON HOLY CROSS PROSPECTS

NEW STANDS TO ACCOMMODATE 3500 MORE

By WALTER KILEY

Construction of new steel stands of the portable type in order to raise the seating capacity for the Boston College-Holy Cross game to a total of close to 25,000 spectators and the donation of a massive sterling silver trophy by the Philomatheia Club to go to Boston College or Holy Cross football team which wins the first three games in their annual series, these were the latest bits of news released at the home of the Eagles at Chestnut Hill today.

The new stands are to be erected by the same firm which added the recent seats on the sidelines. They are to close in the present open end of the Stadium at the foot of the hill leading up to the college.

EXPECT 25,000 FANS

Some [illegible] seats are planned which would raise the capacity to about the 23,500 mark, but allowance is being made for standing space in roped areas. It is fully expected that 25,000 in all will be accommodated comfortably.

When the games were held in past years at Boston baseball parks, the smallest post-war crowd attending these annual conflicts was 27,000. Last year the game was held at Worcester with the bitter cold and long distance from Boston cutting into the attendance in appreciable degree.

Even with the added capacity of the stadium, there will be fewer accommodations than was the case at Fenway Park, nevertheless both teams will be better off in the long run as they will save the cost of rental which ran into figures of large proportion.

With the closing date for Holy Cross tickets applications on Saturday, a brisk demand has been evidenced this week which indicates that the closing game will be a complete sellout.

NEW CUP PRESENTED

The new cup, which is to be known as the Philomatheia Trophy, was presented on behalf of the members of that organization by Mrs. Vincent P. Roberts, club president.

It stands more than two feet high, and is to be inscribed with the names of the winning teams each year. The first one to win three games, not necessarily consecutively, will [illegible] the trophy for permanent possession.

As Joe McKenney puts on the finishing touches for the game with Western Maryland on Saturday, one can't but help be impressed with the spirit of the squad, which can see nothing but victory.

In yesterday's Polar weather, McKenney pulled an innovation which appeared ludicrous but was most practical.

WORK WITH GLOVES

He had every member of the squads equipped with canvas gloves of the [illegible] variety [illegible] which prevented the players from suffering from frozen hands for Saturday.

Henry Ohrenberger and Ike Ezmunt will again be at the tackles, Flavio Tosi and Ed Furbush at the ends; Dave Couhig and Dims Zaitz at the guards and Greg Sullivan at center. Johnny Freitas, Bobby Ott, Johnny Dougan and Capt. Frank Maloney will be the backfield.

Western Maryland arrives in town tomorrow and will be quartered at the Parker House. This makes its second Boston invasion and this time the Dick Harlow coached clan sends word that it will return home victorious.

New York, Nov. 16—Singing the praises of Hawaiian hospitality, the [illegible] golf courses adjacent to Honolulu and ever speaking kindly of the Pacific [illegible] waves, George Herman Ruth is back on the home heath today. The Babe had a glorious time. He played three ball games while in Hawaii, two at Honolulu and one at Hilo. He tried the beach at Waikiki and went back for more. He played golf when he had time, but the Hawaiians were so entertaining that he was forced to curtail some of his anticipated activities on the links.

Babe also played some golf with Frank O'Doul after returning to San Francisco and paid a visit to the Lazzeri home [illegible] in that city. Then he moved down to Los Angeles, saw Stanford beat Southern California and started eastward. The tourists were not expected until later in the week, but they arrived this morning.

'Skylark Center' Grid Wrinkle for Fordham

New York, Nov. 16 (AP)—Lon Stiner, coach of the Oregon State football team that so far has been beaten only by Oregon, the class of the West, has but one regret regarding the trip East to tackle Fordham.

"It would be swell," he said today, "if the boys could just forget football and go out and see the town. They've earned it. But, unfortunately, they've got to play a game Saturday and from what I hear of Fordham, they'd better be good."

[illegible] Oregon [illegible] of the [illegible] year, but the [illegible] He [illegible] a dozen [illegible] He [illegible] team before a game that they're going out to [illegible] The result is [illegible] lose only to Oregon, and he sits quietly on the bench.

MIND IS EVERYTHING

"Give me a mental attitude, the right kind," he says, "and I'll spot you a couple of dashing halfbacks and a half dozen big tackles."

A few [illegible] Oregon State [illegible] probably the best team New York University ever had. Last year they played Fordham in the mud and rain at the Polo Grounds and lost 8 to 6. Stiner said [illegible] about the eleven he's bringing east this season.

"It's a good team," he says. "We've got a great back in 'Red' Franklin, a fast, shifty 180-pound fellow who punts well and passes. The rest of the backs block for him. They'll average about 185 pounds. The line goes about 195 pounds. They had to be good to beat Washington State and San Francisco and hold Southern California and Gonzaga to a scoreless tie.

"But there are some funny features about this team. The center, Clyde Devine, is 6 feet 6 inches tall and weighs 191 pounds; the running guard who plays next to him is Vernon Wedin, 11 inches shorter and 190 pounds in heft. They're a fine looking pair together.

"But we'll have fun," says Stiner. "We'll tackle Fordham without any real injuries, except the flat feet the boys are getting walking around looking at tall buildings. We haven't scouted the Rams much because Santa Clara, St. Mary's and Gonzaga use that Notre Dame stuff on the coast. We might even lick them."

[illegible] the season ends [illegible] and [illegible] State [illegible] Western [illegible] are dickering for a post-season match with either Nebraska or Detroit to be played Thanksgiving Day on the way back home.

N. Y. U. Students in Favor of Big-Time Grid Teams

New York, Nov. 16 (AP)—If they think about it at all, New York University students appear to favor a return to big-time football instead of the present policy of 'de-emphasis.'

A vote of better than 7 to 1 in favor of the [illegible] was conducted at the time of Chick Meehan a few years ago was registered in the poll conducted by the "Washington Square Bulletin," undergraduate publication, but fewer than ten per cent of the students took the trouble to vote.

The Bulletin," which previously had advocated a return to the old policies, said after the returns were in: "the small number of votes cast indicates the students are not interested in the matter and would not kick if football was abolished altogether.

'VIEWS MARKET AS POSSESSING RESISTANCE

Buyers Are Unwilling to Follow Advances, Declares Haney

By LEWIS HANEY
Professor of Economics, New York University

New York, Nov. 16. Although the action of the market as indicated by charts has been far from [illegible] and certain danger signals have appeared, one [illegible] a [illegible] minor reactions and that the market does not seem to want to go down.

It seems that it would take some unexpected unfavorable news to produce a real break.

As yet, weakness is chiefly due to unwillingness of buyers to follow up on advance. On Tuesday, for example, while asked prices were [illegible] maintained, the bids were [illegible] cut or reduced. When this was realized traders he tended to realize on their speculative commitments.

So the averages and the prices of many leading stocks have failed to [illegible] above the resistance levels which I mentioned on Monday. In fact they have settled back very close to what we must now recognize as a lower resistance level.

The lows touched on the Tuesday reaction were close to a critical level, and should stocks go about a point lower than that we would be warranted in assuming that support had been withdrawn. In other words, in case we find the market supported at about the 92 level, a reaction of about 5 points would seem likely.

The chief reason for anticipating a decline is the failure to carry through on the rails. But if the rail reaction remains in check the argument could become as strong on the other side.

In fact when my charts say "lower" my reason suggests the possibility of narrow fluctuations without much progress in either direction. After all, such a course would well fit in with the other uncertainty which the administration's monetary policy is causing.

We are now uncertain even as to uncertainty. For example some fear "stabilization."

On the other hand it is clearer than ever that the public is not going to buy stocks to discount anticipated inflation. Maybe they will come in when inflation is clearly with us, but not before.

On the other hand, those holding stocks as a hedge against inflation are not going to sell out as long as the chances are so strongly that the thing will come.

All in all, I would be inclined to hold those gold, metal, oil and chemical stocks whose prices are [illegible] fied by earning[illegible]

This is on the general theory that a strong probability of real inflation remains; and that even if a sort of pre-inflation panic were to cause a reaction in the stock market some time soon, it would probably be followed by a rise to higher levels than now exist.

But the dangers of new commitments seem to outweigh the chances of gain.

By HUGH F. BRADSHAW

With the constructive forces thrown back on their haunches, sideline operators sat around State Street boardrooms waiting for a clue to the next move. It may be up or it may be down, but the serene security of a liquid position is an excellent guaranty that nothing will be done in haste. So we risk nothing when we say that there is good chance the selling of Tuesday and Wednesday may have been a maneuver to get more stock. We explain this stand farther on.

It all depends on the action within [illegible] levels indicated here yesterday. These are revised upward slightly today. Make the industrial support area 92 [illegible] and the rail resistance 37.25. If the [illegible] turns within one-eighth higher than these points [illegible] be a tribute to those [illegible] the bulk of the long stock in speculative accounts.

RECENT DIP IS ANALYZED

A talk with a prominent operator early today impressed [illegible] the nature of the stre[illegible] he laid on the market action of Monday and early Tuesday. The buying during that period seemed to him to be excellent. Stock offerings on the way up were literally swept out of the way. But a public following was attracted. A [illegible] So what better than a fake move down to get more stock.

Notes. It is largely because of this operator's views that we are moved to say the dip looked like a one and one-half day [illegible] tion. But recognizing the critical spot prices occupied we could hardly gamble by staying long. That, however, is not going to prevent a mighty fast reentry [illegible] us. Because if the list does hold it is likely to go places.

The rails probably hold the cue to prospects of an immediate rally, at least this is the indication of our barometer. The industrial figure is 95.75 and not too far removed. The rail figure, however, is slightly above 38.75 and quite a climb unless the bull crowd indulge themselves in the carrier section.

Stocks likely to be favored by manipulators are still confined to the leader type. Late on, if activity and interest warrant, secondary issues will undoubtedly have their day. Western Union, International Harvester, Sears Roebuck, American Can and United Aircraft are a few [illegible] we hear mentioned at present.

This And That. Pennsylvania is always considered a good bet [illegible] the rail department . . . Along with New York Central and Illinois Central . . . General Electric will have its share of friends from here on if all goes well . . . Incidentally, it is said the bulk of a new Pennsylvania electrification plan goes to General Electric.

One fly in the ointment, and we may as well look at both sides of the picture, is the Congressional elimination of many a potent market force. The [illegible] to do things with stock prices are not lasting [illegible] these days according to [illegible] And [illegible] flowed at that.

AUTO INDUSTRY MAY GIVE UP NRA CODE

Forbes Says That Steel Is Tempted to Take Similar Action

By B. C. FORBES

Detroit, Nov. 16. The automobile industry may be the first industry in the country to give up its NRA code, I learn from authoritative sources. It expires on Dec. 31 and may not be renewed. Another industry is tempted to take similar action: steel.

B. C. Forbes

Its leaders have bitterly resented Washington's stand on the demands, [illegible] the checkoff system on coal miners, compelling employers to withhold part of each [illegible] pay and hand the money over to an outside union.

Meetings are to be held by motor manufacturers this week to consider a definite policy. Some [illegible] at first hard [illegible] strongly favor dropping the code.

Every leader I've talked with [illegible] that not only [illegible] their own workers [illegible] the consuming public would be benefited in the long run by such a decision.

Did you know that [illegible] had any [illegible] remote [illegible] a general [illegible] NRA became the [illegible]

The recent [illegible] die makers [illegible] and the makers [illegible] wide spread dislocation that the [illegible] and production of new lines will be delayed longer this year than ever before. One executive told me:

"Although only 125 of our men quit, they threw five thousand other wage earners out of work."

Automobile manufacturers in justification of the stand they contemplate taking explain [illegible] exception the motor industry has always paid better than average wages; that its relations with its workers have been harmonious, way beyond the average, and that strikes in its plants have been far below the national industrial average.

They also emphasize that they adopted a work-spreading system long before NRA was hatched.

"But what happened after NRA came into the picture?" they ask. And they reply:

Union leaders sent agitators in to plants that had been absolutely peaceful, our workers were made to believe that they had to join outside unions to obtain the benefit of NRA wages and hours, workers became discontented, and certain essential craftsmen, notably diemakers, simply walked out without giving opportunity for settlement. Though few in number they tied the industry into a knot.

"Presumably other classes of workers have gathered the idea from the conduct of some Washington bureaucrats that labor can now do anything it pleases and get official backing. A situation that is not calculated to help either the responsible type of workers or national recovery has been brought about.

I favor remedying it."

STOCKS SCORE GOOD ADVANCE, PACE FASTER

New York, Nov. 16—Numerous shares on the New York Stock Exchange today swept one to six points higher with the trading pace faster.

The buying movement gained momentum in the late dealings after having moved steadily forward following a dull spell in the first hour, trading broadened and blocks of 1000 to 10,000 shares made their appearance.

Issues up 2 to 4 or more points included Case, Du Pont, U. S. Steel, American Telephone, International Nickel, General Motors, Chrysler, Union Pacific, U. S. Smelting, Owen-Illinois Glass and National Distillers.

Moderate advances ruled in the initial hour. Eastman sold up two points. Homestake sagged five points. Schenley, Owens Bottle and Case Threshing were up a point or so. National Distillers was over a point higher.

American Tobacco B, Pullman and Timken Roller Bearing were down a point or more. Improvement appeared for American Telephone, U. S. Steel and United Aircraft. Western Union showed a rise of about two points. Gains of a point or better appeared for Brown Shoe, du Pont, First National Stores, Johns-Manville, International Harvester and Union Carbide.

Sales to 11 a. m. approximated 300,000 shares.

The market quietly rallied in the second hour, with rails and various industrials in the lead. Glass manufacturing issues were in demand Hazel Atlas and Owens-Illinois Glass ranging four to five points higher. Socony-Vacuum gained fractionally in heavy trading.

By noon advances of 1 to 2 points were shown by U. S. Steel, American Telephone, New York Central, Case and Johns-Manville.

Sales to noon approximated 720,000 shares.

Numerous gains of 1 to 5 points were held in the third hour. Hazel-Atlas was 5 and Owens over 4, Du Pont, Case, American Telephone and Johns-Manville tacked on 3 or better. Allied Chemical mounted more than 4 points.

Gains of 2 or better showed for Deere, Industrial Rayon, Western Union, Texas Gulf, National Distillers, American Can, American Smelting, Cerro de Pasco, Celanese, Corn Products, Columbian Carbon and Auburn. U. S. Steel and several other issues rose a point or better.

Sales to 1 p. m. approximated 1,130,000 shares.

In the fourth hour gains of 1 to more than 5 points ruled with trading proceeding at a faster pace than in the earlier periods. Hazel Atlas was more than 5 points higher. Owens Illinois Glass jumped more than 4 and Columbian Carbon was up a similar amount.

Allied Chemical soared more than 4. Gains of 3 points or better were shown for American Telephone, Case Threshing, Union Carbide, U. S. Industrial Alcohol and du Pont. Advances ranging from 1 to 2 or more points were numerous.

Sales to 2 p. m. approximated 1,520,000 shares.

Boston Wool Mart Trade More Active

"Trading in the Boston wool market is more active than for several weeks. Buying is rather scattered, but some purchases have included sizable quantities of the finer territory wools. Good French combings 64s and finer territory wools in original bags have brought 80-81c, scoured basis. Graded strictly combing 58s, 60s, ½ blood, territory wools have been sold at 79-81c, scoured basis, mostly inclined to the high side of this range," says the Boston office of the U. S. Department of Agriculture.

Tin Consuming by America Is Larger

Increased American consumption of tin, which for the twelve months ended August, 1933, was 45 per cent greater than for the full year 1932, has accounted principally for the gain in world consumption this year, according to the latest statistics prepared by The Hague statistical office of the International Tin Research and Development Council.

X-RAY

Examination, consultation and trial treatment absolutely free to all who call before Nov. 19. The wonderful power of the X-ray and mercury quartz light treatment is accomplishing wonders in diseases of every description. No matter what your disease may be remember Daniel J. Walsh, M. D., fulfills the above offer.

ARTHRITIS

Mr. John Reilly, 38 Warren Ave., Somerville, Mass., advises—"Years ago I fell from a ladder and had been troubled with arthritis since then. I had been treated at the relief hospital, but the treatment did not help me. A fellow employee told me that his wife had suffered from a similar ailment and that Dr. Walsh had helped her. I had Dr. Walsh treat me and he gave me the first relief I ever had. I was soon entirely well. I have sent many patients to Dr. Walsh in the year since he treated me and brought others personally. These people all express themselves as pleased with the result of Dr. Walsh's treatment in their cases. I make this statement in the hope that others who suffer as I did may know where to go for relief." (Signed)
John Reilly.

Headline says: "HUEY LONG BOOK TELLS SLUMP PREDICTION."

But Huey still remains a minor prophet. All the evidence indicates that his own came as a complete surprise.

LOOKING BACKWARD.

"Unemployment gives the wage worker a chance to rest and get in physical condition for the next pull."—Statement from Roger Babson in 1930.

Gasp from Tom Guptill—

These sad, sad words to me give pause;
"It is, but shouldn't oughta was."

"But after all," sighs Genevieve, the kitchen cynic, "about the only sure way we can prevent the return of the saloon is by providing something worse."

(Movie Fan Magazine.)

"In spite of all it costs, Jean Harlow would not trade places with any other girl; would not exchange her goldfish bowl existence for the freedom and privacy which she really craves."

Adam Scofflaw's Djournal.

Up in rheumy temper, having been kept awake near all night by the whimpering of the pup dog my saucy cribbage me to busk to help the Buy Now Campaign—and albeit I yield to no man in kindness to dumb creatures who have been snatched from their mothers' breasties, I cannot sleep with a high pitched pupling wailing in mine eares. Albeit I finde that the whelp hush when it can chewn my finger, but Lord! there is no cause for pup to bite my finger with teeth like needles, which it did do, and thus wake me whene'er I fall into a doze.

The Gold Muddle and Domestic Prices

By Robert H. Hemphill

Financial Authority

There is a curious, widespread delusion in America that lowering the valuation of money in terms of gold, in some manner elevates the domestic price of everything else.

It does nothing of the sort.

It elevates the price of gold and gold currencies—nothing else. If gold is ARTIFICIALLY elevated, it will decline the moment the artificial support is removed, just as everything else does.

Almost every monarch of ancient times, when gold coin was the SOLE MEDIUM OF EXCHANGE, at some time when the royal exchequer was short, secretly diluted or debased his gold coin by alloying it with bronze of similar color. He usually split it 50-50.

His objective was to secretly make TWO DOLLARS OUT OF ONE, and fool the populace. Dilution of the gold content of the coins was incidental.

In every recorded case, as the NUMBER OF COINS in circulation increased, their trading value declined, or to view it from the reverse direction, prices for other commodities rose correspondingly.

This is the ancient basis of the theory for elevation of prices by dilution of the gold content of our money.

What certain financial writers and economists apparently fail to recognize is that this process to be permanently effective in a 50 per cent devaluation, requires that TWO PHYSICAL DOLLARS be ACTUALLY ISSUED AND PUT INTO CIRCULATION for each ONE DEBASED.

IF THE AMOUNT OF CIRCULATING MEDIUM OF EXCHANGE IS INCREASED, DEVALUATION IS AUTOMATIC.

Devaluation of money under normal circumstances, is a result—not a cause—just a simple example of the effect of the law of supply and demand.

The President is NOT issuing TWO DOLLARS for EACH ONE devalued—therefore, even if the scheme works psychologically, and the SPECULATIVE prices of some primary commodities are doubled, the final net result will be to DECREASE the total domestic purchases by ONE-HALF, which is DEFLATION WITH A VENGEANCE.

The temporary speculative price must inevitably yield to the factual situation.

There is nothing complicated about it. It is so simple and obvious that it is amazing anyone should ever be confused about it. Listen:

If we have 1,000,000 par dollars in circulation revolving once per annum, it will obviously serve as the medium of exchange to transfer 1,000,000 bushels of wheat from producer to consumer at $1.00 per bushel.

If, by some artifice, we could suddenly reduce the purchasing power to 50c. per dollar, the 1,000,000 fifty cent dollars would obviously effect the transfer of only 500,000 bushels of dollar wheat. The pressure to sell the remaining 500,000 unsold bushels would finally lower the price of all wheat to 50c. per bushel in terms of our 50c. dollar.

We would then have 1,000,000 fifty cent dollars transferring 1,000,000 fifty cent bushels of wheat. The same dollar, and the same wheat. We could move the stated value of both up or down—simultaneously, indefinitely, without ultimately altering the VOLUME of actual exchange. Just a state of mind. No physical change whatever.

IF, however, the VALUE of money remains constant, and we DESTROY one-half the AMOUNT IN CIRCULATION, the remaining 500,000 par dollars will similarly and obviously purchase only 500,000 bushels of dollar wheat.

The pressure of the surplus then forces a lower price until we have 500,000 par dollars purchasing 1,000,000 bushels of fifty cent wheat.

This is precisely the situation from which civilization is suffering.

We destroyed half our circulating medium of exchange—BANK CREDIT, and necessarily there remained a large fraction of production in every department which could not be sold.

The farmer continued to produce full quantity or more, and necessarily had to accept the reduced price.

The manufacturer, who could not cut costs 50 per cent, reduced his output—with consequent widespread unemployment.

That sums up the world situation.

If we reverse the process and EXPAND the VOLUME of MONEY or CREDIT in circulation; as the increased EFFECTIVE demand begins to consume the unsold surplus, prices which have declined rise. This rise will continue until the demand is satisfied and we then have balanced consumption-production, and money exchanging at the highest prices, and complete employment.

Overproduction of any commodity will then lower prices of the specific commodity overproduced—no others.

Overexpansion of money or credit beyond its proper relation to the total demand and supply of goods and services, will then lower the purchasing power of money.

This would be GENUINE MONEY INFLATION—GENUINE DEVALUATION, from overproduction of money or credit.

If speculation were prohibited the "pressure to sell" a moderate surplus of money would stimulate invention and new enterprise.

Money would be "cheap" or rather, credit would be cheap as it should be—just how cheap depends upon the supply.

Just now credit for speculation is cheap. It is practically unobtainable for legitimate commerce or industry.

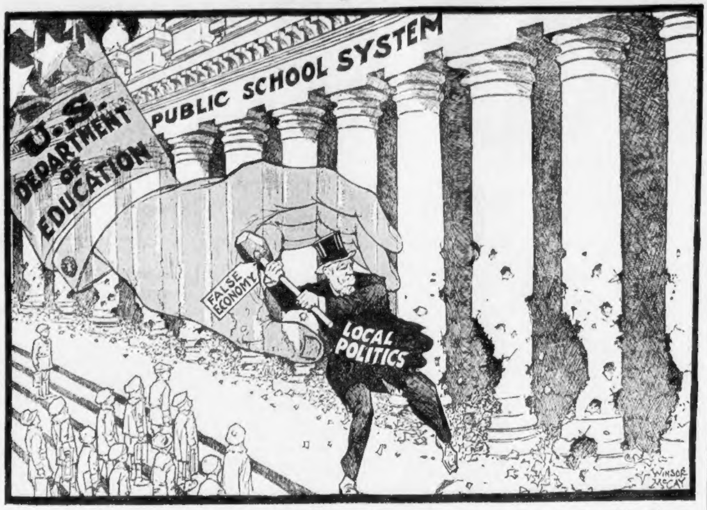
Luminous Auto Plates

In Australia, and other foreign countries, they are experimenting with luminous license plates for automobiles.

One purpose of the luminous plate is to forewarn the autoist of the approach of the car. Another is to aid in the detection of the driver who hits and runs.

We should like to see Registrar Ryan make some experiment with the luminous plate in Massachusetts. Most anything is worth trying, especially if it holds any possibility of curbing the auto slaughter, which takes a toll of 1000 lives annually, not to mention the injuries suffered by thousands of our people.

Stop It!



One of America's greatest contributions to the advancement of civilization has been the public school system.

Consult Dean Cubberley's article on education in the Encyclopedia Britannica. You will read that the first public school was established in the old Massachusetts Bay Colony in the seventeenth century, and the first law was then enacted making school attendance compulsory for the children of rich and poor alike.

From that beginning succeeding generations slowly developed our nationwide system—and it has been the public school that has developed our self-governing citizenship, giving us intelligent farmers instead of peasants and skilled workmen instead of laborious drudges.

The Puritan Fathers, in their wilderness homes, put education FIRST and made a great nation. Today, when other countries have emulated our American scheme, petty local politics puts education LAST.

This destructive false economy must cease. The Federal Government must rescue education and carry on its interrupted progress.

Fish Markets

NEW YORK, Nov. 16—Fish markets—along the Seine, Billingsgate and Fulton street—have always interested me. Chiefly, I think, because of the harmony and discord of smell. Fulton Market in this musical metaphor is a cat walking across a piano. A blare of odors.

O. O. McIntyre

The stranger there, if he has a keen nose, can disentangle the strains of the mass effect, just as a music lover is able to deafen himself to the symphony and follow the steady notes of an individual 'cello. He knows the haddock from the cod several stalls away.

But the hardened Fulton Market fishmonger—and you cannot talk to one five minutes without being told Al Smith began life there—smells nothing. His nose becomes atrophied. After several years he becomes entirely immune from fishy spindrifts. How wonderful nature is!

It is at dusk that the aromas fairly assault the senses. For men in high-hipped rubber boots begin flushing stalls for next day. The gutters run with chopped oddments, some already in a state of decay. Another thing I learned. Fishmongers as a class are fond of fish as food.

At 5 a. m. big hotel and restaurant buyers wander in and out Fulton's rows of dead fish. Nothing can look so dead as a fish. It is difficult to believe these beautiful specimens along with the comic monstrosities with shiny green whiskers have ever sported gallantly in the sea, making love, building homes and seeing to it the world is generously supplied with their flabby corpses.

One of the staunchest trios of New York's literary world was composed of Richard Harding Davis, John Fox, Jr. and Charles Dana Gibson, when each was in full flush of popularity. They usually lunched at the Brevoort or at Delmonico's and romantic ladies filled nearby tables just to gaze and dreams. Gibson's girl and the Gibson man were as popular as Mickey Mouse today. Gibson was the artist, Dickey Davis was the Gibson man in real life and John Fox, Jr., later to marry the prima donna of the day, Fritzi Scheff, was turning out romantic best sellers of his native Virginia.

Listen, World!

By Elsie Robinson

If I Could Start Again!

EVER HEAR a soul talking to itself? Here is the record of a soul talking to itself.

Elsie Robinson

Whose soul? Any soul. All souls. All the souls in America talking to themselves out of the bedlam, the despair and discouragement of 1933. Your soul—my soul—all of us talking to ourselves. All of us facing the same things, wishing the same things. Listen!

Oh, if I could only make a fresh start!

What's the use of going on like that? Waking each morning to the same dark thoughts—thinking what a fool I've been, and the mess I've made of everything! Falling asleep each night with the same useless tear—remembering the dear ones who've gone, the happiness that's over forever, the chances that will never come again!

What's the use of living, when everything's spoiled?

But suppose I could begin all over again—wipe out all the old mistakes, forget the bitter memories, rid myself of the hangovers of fear and hate, resentment and regret?

If I could only start all over again, like that, how different life would be! So clean and free, so honest and happy and proud!

Never again—never, never again!—would I do such fool things. For indeed, I never wanted to do them. Not really! But somehow I just got into a jam, then everything went wrong! But if I could make a fresh start—

Why, then, I'd just do the things I really want to do—the big, brave decent things I've always wanted to do. I'd show the world my real self.

But I can't do that now, with all this old record behind me. There's no use even trying. For, no matter what I do, that record will be held against me, will drag me down.

Oh, God, why does life have to be like this? Why can't we start all over again?

BUT WE DO START ALL OVER AGAIN! EACH DAY WE START ALL OVER AGAIN, FRESH AND FREE, WITH A CLEAN SLATE BEFORE US!

Yes, I know what you're going to say,—"We can't shake our yesterdays." That's true; we can't But what of it? Why be so tragic about our yesterdays? Full of mistakes? Of course they were. But a mistake isn't necessarily tragic.

OUR MISTAKES ARE AS MUCH A PART OF OUR GROWTH AS OUR SUCCESSES: AS NATURAL AND AS NECESSARY.

That isn't Pollyanna talk. It's simply truth. I'm writing this beside a huge oak. The trunk of the old oak is a tower behind my back. Its roots spread out in walls on either side. They sink into a dark loam, very rich and deep.

The life of the huge tree is drawn from that loam. Yearly the roots sink it more deeply, sending the stored nourishment out into the thickening trunk, the spreading branches. Wonderful soil! Still, after a hundred years of storm and drouth and frost, it is giving the old oak "a fresh start."

Yet here is a strong thing. That soil in which the oak lives, on which it feeds, WAS MADE BY THE OAK ITSELF. IT WAS MADE FROM THE FALLEN LEAVES AND ACROSS, THE SPLINTERED BRANCHES, THE SCORCHED BARK OF THE OAK'S OWN GROWING LIFE.

IT WAS MADE FROM THE OAK'S YESTERDAYS!

Discouraged? Disgusted? Wishing you could "wipe out all the old mistakes?"

Why wipe them out? USE THEM, INSTEAD! They aren't a "shameful record" which you should forget—which you must eliminate before you can be free. They are the natural result of your own growth—of the things you have done in your effort to live—of the things that have happened to you. They are as natural as soil.

THEY ARE THE SOIL OF YOUR SOUL. ROOT IN THAT SOIL—AND GO ON!

The Needful Change

If I had a paper to write on the times
I wouldn't collect many figures to show
What's happened to dollars and quarters and dimes
Or what has become of the crops that we grow.
I'd pass up inflation as too deep for me,
And leave the cold records to stand on the shelves,
For I'm sure this old world would much happier be
If we'd think more of others and less of ourselves.

Things have turned topsy-turvy, but hatred and rage
Won't set them aright nor will brickbats and sticks.
It's not so much figures on some ledger page,
But our hearts and our minds that perhaps we should fix.
It may be too much out of life we demand
And seeking for pleasures we've all gone astray.
Contentment's not made by the law of the land
But must come to us all in the old-fashioned way.

The old-fashioned courage that keeps to its creed,
The old-foshioned courage that keeps to its creed,
A little less hatred when wrong has occurred,
A little more faith may be all that we need.
Statistics I'm sure are oft misunderstood,
But when labor and capital walk hand in hand
With respect for each other I know 'twill be good
For the peace of the home and the peace of the land.

States as great engines move slowly.

By James T. Williams, Jr.

Because he made the mistake of lapsing into prophecy, instead of sticking to engineering, Harry S. Berry has been relieved by the secretary of the interior as state engineer for Tennessee of the public works administration.

In an effort to accelerate applications from Tennessee for federal loans for public works, Mr. Berry addressed a circular letter to all the civic organizations in that state in which he made in effect the predictions that municipalities asking for loans will not be expected to repay them.

"We have seen," said this engineer turned prophet, "what the Tennessee Legislature did with reference to relieving the counties of their road bonds, and we may judge the future by the past."

Tennessee is only one of many states now borrowing from various agencies of the federal government which may not pay its loans, be they municipal, county or state, unless what President Roosevelt rightly describes as "an outworn system of government built in the days of the ox cart" is not modernized to meet the needs of the days of the automobile.

Why should the people of Tennessee be taxed to support the maintenance of 95 county governments when the tax burden involved is distressing the people of the state, causing thousands to lose their homes and depriving many children of the schooling to which they are entitled?

ONE REASON

One of the reasons why the States of South Carolina, Florida, Louisiana, Mississippi and Arkansas are now wholly dependent upon the Federal government for the relief of their destitute unemployed is because they have failed to modernize the machinery of their state and local governments. A horde of unnecessary state and local officials are eating up the public money that ought to go for schools, constabulary, public works and other useful state services.

Florida does not require 67 county governments. Arkansas has been practically bankrupted by the burden of supporting 75 county governments, each with its flock of political locusts feeding upon the people.

A scientific survey of government in Mississippi has demonstrated the stupid waste involved in continuing all of its 82 county governments.

The 65 parishes, each with its group of tax-eating officials, into which the State of Louisiana is divided, and the 46 county governments that dig into the pockets of the people, who make up the citizenship of the tax-ridden state of South Carolina, are two more flagrant examples of obsolete government in this country that ought to have been dispensed with long ago.

The time was when the squandering of the peoples' money upon the support of more than 3000 county governments, 25,000 townships, and additional thousands of smaller subdivisions of government was a matter of main concern to the several states. If any substantial amount of the hundreds of millions of dollars which the federal government is lending to state and local governments today is ever to be repaid, their governmental hand-me-down from ox cart days must be transformed into strong and simplified state governments designed to serve a modern American state.

THE FIRST STEP

On his way from the Federal city to spend his Thanksgiving holiday at Warm Springs, Georgia, President Roosevelt's train will pass through two states which have faced the facts presented by obsolete government and followed where the facts led.

These are the states of North Carolina and Virginia. The one under the administration of Governor O. Max Gardner, and the other under the administration of Governor Harry Flood Byrd, now a United States senator from Virginia, re-organized state and local governments to me the challenge and supply t needs of the day of the automobile.

The first step taken by Governor Gardner and Governor Byrd was to call in the Institute for government research of the Brookings Institution at Washington. Its experts made an independent and thoroughly scientific survey of the organization and administration of state and county government. In the light of the facts adduced by this survey, the governments of North Carolina and Virginia were modernized and simplified to the tremendous benefit of the people of those states.

Mississippi, Alabama, New Hampshire and Iowa have been similarly surveyed, and reorganization is under way. What these states have done the other states of the union can do. In fact, they should be encouraged, if not required, to provide for such a survey, if the federal government is to continue to go to their relief upon the theory that they are good financial risks.

World Tour of Whistler's Masterpiece "Mother" Recalls How Portrait Came to Be Painted

By Edwin C. Hill

Whistler's "Mother," perhaps the most widely copied of all paintings, is about to begin a tour of the United States. With the consent of the Louvre which guards the "Mother" for the Republic of France, the famed work will be exhibited in many large American cities, to be returned to the Louvre in Paris in June, 1934.

Odd to recall that when this picture was first shown in the United States, 40 years ago at the Chicago World's Fair, it could have been purchased for $1000. Now it is literally priceless.

Extreme precaution is being taken to guard the Whistler painting. It is shown only in completely fireproof buildings. It is protected not only by a guard on constant duty and a protecting iron rail, but by a concealed mechanism so delicate that if the painting is moved in the slightest degree an alarm sounds. For further protection, a detailed photograph of the painting is taken by each museum on the day of its arrival and departure. The genuineness of each photograph is vouched for by the affidavits of museum officials.

Here is the fascinating story of the origin of the "Portrait of the Artist's Mother." Wilmington, N. C., in 1864—a delightful old Southern city then, even as it is today. Negro roustabouts feverishly loading cotton into the hold of the good ship "Advance." The captain and the crew tense with nervousness as they speed the loading and prepare to run the blockade of the Federal fleet, lying out in the Atlantic beyond the range of the guns of Fort Fisher. Manchester, England, their goal, and the food and medicines sorely needed by the Confederate troops of the beleagued South.

From the bridge the captain is about to give the command, "weigh anchor," when a carriage drawn by a pair of lathered horses rolls upon the dock. The captain stays his order. From the carriage steps a slight, serene, aristocratic lady. On board the blockade runner, she hands to the astonished but deferential captain a letter with an official seal.

A LONE WOMAN'S VENTURE

"I have here," the lady says in her gentle though imperious voice, "a letter from the Governor of North Carolina which permits me to sail on this ship for England."

The captain bows low again, summons a steward and sends his guest to her quarters. It is not for him to ask why a lone woman so resolutely ventures the dangers of shot and shell through which his ship must dash to win free of the Yankee blockaders. But if he had inquired, she would have replied: "I have a boy in England. He needs me to look after him. What greater reason could a mother have?"

The Yankees almost got the Advance. They shot away part of her rigging. But she sped through the blockade and raced toward the English coast, where she safely landed the intrepid lady who was hastening to the son that needed her. And after 69 years she returned to us—not in the flesh, of course, but certainly in the spirit. She returned immortalized on canvas by the genius who was her son.

And that is the story of how the most famous, if not the greatest, painting ever to come from the brush of an American artist had its inception. For the lady who came in haste to the dock in Wilmington, N. C., that day in 1864 was Anna Mathilda McNeill Whistler, James McNeill Whistler's mother.

The masterpiece, which was the first painting by an American artist ever to be purchased by the great Louvre Museum in Paris, is Jimmy Whistler's "Portrait of the Artist's Mother."

GRACEFUL ACT BY FRANCE

It was a graceful act on the part of France and the Louvre to lend the portrait, which is known in every land of the world and which has been adopted as the symbol of the mother of all ages and all lands, to the Art Museum of Chicago as part of the superb art exhibit of the Century of Progress Exhibition.

Five million copies of that portrait adorn homes from one end of the world to another. As her adoring son painted her, and as we see her, Whistler's mother sits in a low chair, whose outline is faintly discernible. It is her left profile we see as she sits with her hands folded in her lap, her neat feet, in black slippers, resting upon a low foot-stoll. She is all in black, except for a cap of white lace, one end of which trails gracefully over her left shoulder; a touch of fine lace at her throat, and the lace handkerchief in her folded hands.

So she sits, thoughtfully gazing into space, perhaps a little sadly. So it was she remained with her boy, who always called her "Mama," until she passed on in 1903 leaving Jimmy Whistler in the fullness of his fame.
